Marx And Nature A Red And Green Perspective:

Marx and Nature P. Burkett, 1999-02-14 With Marx and Nature Paul Burkett reconstructs Marx's approach to nature, society, and environmental crisis. While recognizing that production is structured by historically developed relations among producers, Marx also insists that production as a social and material process is shaped and constrained by natural conditions, including the natural condition of human bodily existence. Marx's value analysis places him squarely in the camp of the growing number of ecological theorists questioning the ability of monetary and market-based calculations to adequately represent the natural conditions of human production and development.

Marx and Nature NA NA, 1999-02-15 There may still be disagreement about the threat to human survival posed by society's environmental impacts, but no one can doubt that individual eco-systems and the global biosphere are both increasingly shaped by human production and consumption. This book shows that Marx's treatment of natural conditions possesses an inner logic, coherence, and analytical power which has not been previously recognized. The power of Marx's approach stems from his consistent treatment of human production in terms of the mutual constitution of its social form and material content. While recognizing that production is structured by historically developed relations among producers, Marx also insists that production as a social and material process is shaped and constrained by natural conditions, including the natural condition of human bodily existence. Paul Burkett shows that it is Marx's overriding concern with human emancipation that impels him to approach nature from the standpoint of materialist history, sociology, and critical political economy.

Marx's Theory of Land, Rent and Cities Don Munro, 2022-10-19 Bringing together Marx's original writings on land rent and the landed property class, this book applies them to contemporary cities in the Global North and Global South. The book shows how landed property, and not just labour and capital, directly affects urban economic development, the built environment, urban governance, and the quality of life of people living in cities. It also shows how land rent and class transform cities in different ways, depending on the indigenous, Asiatic, feudal, capitalist, or other modes of production that mould the form and substance of cities. Presenting a new comparative approach, this book provides novel insights into the origins of, and solutions to, many of today's urban problems, including urban enclosures, exclusive property development, the financialisation of land, land grabbing, and climate change.

The Bloomsbury Companion to Marx Andrew Pendakis, Imre Szeman, Jeff Diamanti, 2018-12-27 There are very few figures in history that have exerted as much and as varied an influence as Karl Marx. His work represents an unrivalled intervention into fields as various as philosophy, journalism, economics, history, politics, and cultural criticism. His name is invoked across the political spectrum in connection to revolution and insurrection, social justice, and economic transformation. The Bloomsbury Companion to Marx is the definitive reference guide to Marx's life and work. Written by an international team of leading Marx scholars, the book offers comprehensive coverage of Marx's life and contexts, sources, influences, and encounters, key writings, major themes, and topics, and reception and influence. The defining feature of this Companion is its attention to the new directions in Marxism that animate the theoretical scientific and political sides of Marx's thought Gender and the growing importance of Marxist feminism is treated as equally important to clarifying Marx today as traditional and diverse categories of critique such as class capital and mode of production Similarly this Companion showcases the methodological and political importance of Marxism to environmentalist politics Finally the volume examines in detail non European Marxisms demonstrating the centrality of Marxist thought to political movements both within and beyond the global north This book is the ideal research resource for anyone working on Marx and his ideas today and as an entry point if you are approaching Marx's thought for the first time

Perspectives on Global Development and Technology, 2006 Journal of Economic Literature, 1999 Marxism and Ecological Economics Paul Burkett, 2006-03-01 This book undertakes the first general assessment of ecological economics from a Marxist point of view and shows how Marxist political economy can make a substantial contribution to ecological economics The analysis is developed in terms of four basic issues 1 nature and economic value 2 the treatment of nature as capital 3 the significance of the entropy law for economic systems 4 the concept of sustainable development In each case it is shown that Marxism can help ecological economics fulfill its commitments to multi disciplinarity methodological pluralism and historical openness In this way a foundation is constructed for a substantive dialogue between Marxists and ecological economists

The American Economic Review, 1999 Includes papers and proceedings of the annual meeting of the American Economic Association Covers all areas of economic research

Reconstructing Nature Peter Dickens, 2002-11-01 One of the main features of the contemporary environmental crisis is that no one has a clear idea of what is going on The author uses an extension of Marx's theory of alienation to explain why people find it so difficult to relate their different knowledges of the natural and social world He argues that nevertheless it is possible to relate these to the abstractions of ecological discourse Emancipation can come only through embracing science and rationality rather than rejecting them and in the process humanity as well as the non human world will benefit

Environmental Philosophy Michael E. Zimmerman, 2005 This text explores the full spectrum of concerns in contemporary eco philosophy environmental ethics ecofeminism and social justice environmental continental philosophy and political ecology

Nature, Society and Environmental Crisis Bob Carter, Nickie Charles, 2010-04-05 Many of the chapters in the present volume were first presented at the 2008 BSA Annual Conference of Social Worlds Natural Worlds held at the University of Warwick Acknowledgements
