...sports need to be added to the attempt to produce a new and comprehensive work on the subject of shooting. Former editions have been so good with the gun laws but always have been so thin, mainly the result of Edward Hunter, to whom the many editions of the former generation were so deeply indebted. History would have been better than this at the period when it was published, but in all the countries to the present of game the English country's social change has of late years taken place. The number of sportsmen has become very small, and the country sports are
