Sets Events Switching:

Nonblocking Electronic and Photonic Switching Fabrics Wojciech Kabacinski, 2005-12-06 Switching fabrics first appeared in telephone exchanges where there was a need to interconnect many pairs of telephones installed in the network. Due to the large number of connected subscribers and inter-exchange links, switching fabrics in telephone exchanges have to serve a great number of input and output ports. Because of the scale, large switching fabrics were constructed from smaller ones. The way of building switching fabrics from elements of smaller capacity and different characteristics of switching fabrics topologies has been for a long time a rich area of theoretical research. The seminal work is due to C. Clos [23] who first considered multistage strict sense nonblocking switching networks and V. E. Benes [9] who first introduced the mathematical theory of switching networks. From that time many researches were conducted in this field. Switching fabrics found its application not only in telecommunication starting from telephone exchanges through ATM switches and IP routers to optical cross connect systems and optical packet switches but also in other areas of knowledge like computation and control. Theory of switching fabrics becomes also a part of applied mathematics. Results of studies carried out by researchers from these areas were published in numerous papers and some books. This book is intended for people interested in the switching theory and especially combinatorial characteristics of switching networks. It contains a considerable amount of already known results. Some of them are presented in more detailed form, other are only mentioned.

Discrete Event Systems, Manufacturing Systems, and Communication Networks P.R. Kumar, P.P. Varaiya, 2012-12-06 This IMA Volume in Mathematics and its Applications DISCRETE EVENT SYSTEMS MANUFACTURING SYSTEMS AND COMMUNICATION NETWORKS is based on the proceedings of a workshop that was an integral part of the 1992-93 IMA program on Control Theory. The study of discrete event dynamical systems (DEDS) has become rapidly popular among researchers in systems and control in communication networks in manufacturing and in distributed computing. This development has created problems for researchers and potential consumers of the research. The first problem is the veritable Babel of languages, formalisms, and approaches which makes it very difficult to determine the commonalities and distinctions among the competing schools of approaches. The second related problem arises from the different traditions, paradigms, values, and experience that scholars bring to their study of DEDS depending on whether they come from control, communication, computer science, or mathematical logic. As a result, intellectual exchange among scholars becomes compromised by unexplicated assumptions. The purpose of the Workshop was to promote exchange among scholars representing some of the major schools of thought in DEDS with the hope that 1) greater clarity will be achieved thereby and 2) cross fertilization will lead to more fruitful questions. We thank P. R. Kumar and P. P. Varaiya for organizing the workshop and editing the proceedings. We also take this opportunity to thank the National Science Foundation and the Army Research Office whose financial support made the workshop possible.
