Trauma in Poems of Major Stewart Hill and Captain James Jeffrey. An Attempt to Devitalise Cathy Caruth's "Unrepresentability Claim", 2022-06-15 Seminar paper from the year 2021 in the subject Didactics for the subject English Literature Works grade 1 0 University of Paderborn

language English abstract The poems presented in this paper demonstrate the presence of trauma in poetry through their use of stylistic devices tone and atmosphere Thus this paper aims to invalidate and criticise Caruth s approach to the unrepresentability of trauma by investigating three poems two poems were written by war veterans previously deployed in Afghanistan and one was written by a veteran s daughter to prove the literal representability of trauma A close reading of the stylistic devices tone and created atmosphere emphasises the possibilities that poets must present their trauma through literature Lastly the analysis of Olivia Hill s poem reflects on the trauma perception from a different angle namely from outside the traumatised mind Additionally it underscores the effects that parental traumatic experiences have on children Trauma forces the self into hiding and while the sensory manifold keeps recording sights sounds smells and feelings the brain fails to work them through The videographer leaves but the tape keeps running This image provided by Boston University s Joshua Pederson in his paper on challenging literary trauma theorists reflects one perspective of the nature of trauma that is shared by many scholars and psychologists around the world Cathy Caruth s 1996 Unclaimed Experience and Trauma Explorations in Memory present the essential elements of trauma discourse heavily relying on Freudian theories Her definition of trauma is based on the claim that trauma victims suffer physical injury followed by belated symptoms without causal relationship to the preceding injury that cannot be reconciled with one another Caruth also emphasises the nature of traumatic recollection being largely inaccessible to conscious recall and control because of its irrevocably damaging nature Furthermore the failure to combine the wish to understand past events relived through trauma and the inability to comprehend them underlines the linguistic abnormality of trauma

Coping with Trauma Jon G. Allen,2005 This book is based on more than a decade of Dr Allen s experience conducting educational groups for persons struggling with psychiatric disorders stemming from trauma Readers will gain essential knowledge to embark on the process of healing from the complex wounds of trauma along with a guide to current treatment approaches

Racism, Memory and Trauma in Canada and the "Soucouyant" Thomas Gantner,2015-05-26 Seminar paper from the year 2012 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 1 7 University of Rostock Institut f r Anglistik und Amerikanistik course Witchcraft Memory and the Legacy of Sugar in Caribbean Literature language English abstract African American slavery and racism that black people and other ethnic minorities often had and still have to face in their every day lives in Canada are disabled from Canadian history and their modern representation When associations are made to the topic of slavery most people do not know that slavery existed in Canada because slave trade mostly took place in the larger Atlantic Ocean and America Therefore it was suppressed from Canadian s history even if it is very much a part of it The novel Soucouyant by David Chariandy published in 2007 picks out main topics as forgetting and remembering trauma dislocation family but also racism as a central theme However I want to emphasize on all these themes in the subsequent chapters whereas the topic of family will be on the fringes Also I would like to present how racism in Canada developed and how a traumatic event is processed in one's mind For the illustration of these subjects I will use the novel Soucouyant as well as The Hanging of Anglique but will mostly concentrate on Soucouyant because it allows a great deal of interpretation in the context of themes as racism memory and trauma

Remembering Edward S. Casey, 2000 Provides a descriptive treatment of varieties of human memory including recognising and reminding reminiscing and commemorating body memory and place memory Bringing to light forgotten aspects of human memory everyday occurrences as well as unusual instances this study demonstrates that nothing in our lives is unaffected by remembering

The Burden of Remembering Ene Kõresaar, E. Lauk, K. Kuutma, 2009 This is a book that focuses on two major turning points in the 20th century history that determine the formation of that century as a realm of memory the Second World War and the collapse of Communist regimes and ideology in Europe These two events are revisited from the point of view of transdisciplinary memory studies to demonstrate the interplay of continuance and discontinuance of political and cultural regimes of memory of these ruptures as well as their interconnections in present day discourses and practices of remembering and forgetting The memory practices and models of the Second World War are comparatively interrelated with the practices of remembering and interpreting the realities of the period after the fall of Communism in Europe

Remembering and Forgetting 1916 Rebecca Graff-McRae, 2010 Remembering and Forgetting 1916 engages with the diverse divergent and at times contradictory discourses of commemoration in Ireland It explores the complex politics of commemoration of four significant events in Irish history the Easter Rising the Battle of the Somme the 1798 Rebellion and the H Block Hunger Strike It asks how the commemorations of these events have become incorporated into present politics in the wake of the Good Friday Agreement The book begins and ends with the Easter Rising The construction of 1916 as the pivotal moment of Irish history identity and memory has had lasting consequences for the Irish definition of political conflict and how this is defined through commemoration In Remembering and Forgetting 1916 it is argued that the ghosts of 1916 are in many ways the ghosts of 1998 This book thus calls forth the ghosts of commemoration and examines how the ghosts of conflict and consensus are used to political ends in the present Publisher

Traumatic Relationships and Serious Mental Disorders Jon G. Allen, 2001-07-06 Mental physical or sexual abuse in close personal relationships commonly results in trauma that is very different from the trauma of accidents illness or war Making creative use of attachment theory to explicate the multifaceted outcomes of trauma this book provides a powerful conceptual framework and a concise masterly review of a huge knowledge base Encyclopedic in scope and scholarly in its up to the minute survey of research findings

New Insights in Trauma and Memory Elke Geraerts, Marko Jelicic, 2008 The purpose of this special issue is to highlight studies examining remembering and forgetting in people who report having experienced traumatic events

Remembering Trauma Phil Mollon, 1998-08-21 The heated controversy in recent years regarding therapeutic memory recovery via repression dissolution lends this book an important timeliness A balanced review of all sides of the debate by a highly respected psychotherapist this book relates recovery s attendant issues to a range of psychological therapies and compellingly demonstrates them in practice Trauma ,2002
