Like Wildfire Sean Patrick O'Rourke, Lesli K. Pace, 2020-06-02 The sit ins of the American civil rights movement were extraordinary acts of dissent in an age marked by protest By sitting in at whites only lunch counters libraries beaches swimming pools skating rinks and churches young African Americans and their allies put their lives on the line fully aware that their actions would almost inevitably incite hateful violent responses from entrenched and increasingly desperate white segregationists And yet they did so in great numbers most estimates suggest that in 1960 alone more than seventy thousand young people participated in sit ins across the American South and more than three thousand were arrested The simplicity and purity of the act of sitting in coupled with the dignity and grace exhibited by participants lent to the sit in movement's sanctity and peaceful power In Like Wildfire editors Sean Patrick O'Rourke and Lesli K Pace seek to clarify and analyze the power of civil rights sit ins as rhetorical acts persuasive campaigns designed to alter perceptions of apartheid social structures and to change the attitudes laws and policies that supported those structures These cohesive essays from leading scholars offer a new appraisal of the origins growth and legacy of the sit ins which has gone largely ignored in scholarly literature The authors examine different forms of sitting in and the evolution of the rhetorical dynamics of sit in protests detailing the organizational strategies they employed and connecting them to later protests By focusing on the persuasive power of demanding space the contributors articulate the ways in which the protestors battle for basic civil rights shaped social practices laws and the national dialogue O Rourke and Pace maintain that the legacies of the civil rights sit ins have been many complicated and at times undervalued
