language policy curriculum design and assessment Drawing on current research and practice the book offers practical guidance for language teachers and curriculum designers examining the relationship between language policy and curriculum design and highlighting the importance of assessment in the context of Global Englishes Over the past few decades English has emerged as a global lingua franca used by speakers from diverse linguistic and cultural backgrounds to communicate with one another However many English language teachers and curriculum designers are still grappling with the practical implications of Global Englishes This book addresses this gap and will be an essential resource for language teachers as well as students and scholars in areas including Language Education Applied Linguistics TESOL and English Language Teaching Yusop Boonsuk is an Associate Professor of Applied Linguistics at the Faculty of Education Prince of Songkla University Thailand He holds a PhD from the Centre for Global Englishes at the University of Southampton UK His research interests include Global Englishes intercultural and transcultural communication and awareness global intercultural citizenship and ELT EMI and teacher education He has published articles in journals including TESOL Quarterly System Language Teaching Research Language and Education RELC Journal Asia Pacific Journal of Education and Journal of English as a Lingua Franca Ali Karakas is an Associate Professor of Applied Linguistics at Mehmet Akif Ersoy University Turkey His research primarily focuses on EMI Global Englishes and language teacher education His work has been published in journals including Asian Englishes Linguistics and Education System RELC Journal and Ib rica He has co edited two volumes English as the Medium of Instruction in Turkish Higher Education Policy Practice and Progress 2022 and Teacher Professional Development Programs in EMI Settings International Perspectives 2025

Mother Tongues and Nations Thomas Paul Bonfiglio, 2010-06-29 This monograph examines the ideological legacy of the the apparently innocent kinship metaphors of mother tongue and native speaker by historicizing their linguistic development It shows how the early nation states constructed the ideology of ethnolinguistic nationalism a composite of national language identity geography and race This ideology invented myths of congenital communities that configured the national language in a symbiotic matrix between body and physical environment and as the ethnic and corporeal ownership of national identity and local organic nature These ethno nationalist gestures informed the philology of the early modern era and generated arboreal and genealogical models of language culminating most divisively in the race conscious discourse of the Indo European hypothesis of the 19th century The philosophical theories of organicism also contributed to these ideologies The fundamentally nationalist conflation of race and language was and is the catalyst for subsequent permutations of ethnolinguistic discrimination which continue today Scholarship should scrutinize the tendency to overextend biological metaphors in the study of language as these can encourage however surreptitiously genetic and racial impressions of language

Language Contact and Bilingualism René Appel, Pieter Muysken, 2005 What happens sociologically linguistically educationally politically when more than one language is in regular use in a community How do speakers handle these languages simultaneously and what influence does this language contact have on the languages involved Although most people in the world use more than one language in everyday life the approach to the study of language has usually been that monolingualism is the norm The recent interest in bilingualism and language contact has led to a number of new approaches based on research in communities in many different parts of the world This book draws together this diverse research looking at examples from many different situations to present the topic in any easily accessible form Language contact is looked at from four distinct perspectives The authors consider bilingual societies bilingual speakers language use in the bilingual community finally language itself do languages change when in contact with each other Can they borrow rules of grammar or just words How can new languages emerge from language contact The result is a clear concise synthesis offering a much needed overview of this lively area of language study

The Study of Second Language Acquisition Rod Ellis,1994 This thorough introduction to second language research provides a comprehensive review of the research into learner language internal and external factors in language acquisition individual differences and classroom second language learning
