The Journey of Helen Keller
Helen Keller was born on June 27, 1880, in Tuscumbia, Alabama. At the age of 19 months, she contracted an illness that left her both deaf and blind. Despite these challenges, Keller's family refused to give up on her. At the age of seven, she began learning to communicate with the help of Anne Sullivan, her teacher and lifelong companion. Through Anne's patience and innovative teaching methods, Helen learned to read and write in Braille and even speak. She went on to attend Radcliffe College and graduated with honors, becoming the first deaf-blind person to earn a college degree. Keller dedicated her life to advocating for people with disabilities, women's rights, and social justice. She traveled the world, giving speeches, and writing books to inspire others. Her perseverance and determination helped change how people viewed the potential of individuals with disabilities.

Reading Biography:

Reading Biography Carl Rollyson, 2004-11-25 Most book reviewers know very little about the history or the art of biography. Indeed, if there is any art in biography, it is the rare reviewer that acknowledges it or knows how to discuss it. Usually, the reviewer regards biography as an occasion to wax eloquent about what he or she thinks of the subject. Little space, if any, is devoted to the biography's structure or style, to the biographer's peculiar problems, or to how the biography relates to others about the same subject. Carl Rollyson, a professional biographer and weekly columnist on Biography for The New York Sun, explores the ramifications of authorized and unauthorized biographies, investigates the relationship between biography and history, biography and fiction, biography and autobiography, as well as commenting on certain perennial biographical subjects such as Napoleon, on sub-genres such as children's biography, and on the most recent developments in life writing. Rollyson's aim is to reach not merely scholars but that vast general audience addicted to reading biography, enhancing their pleasure by providing insight or, you might say, the inside word on how biographies are put together.
