Inhabiting Borders, Routes Home Ala Sirriyeh, 2016-05-23 In recent years there has been growing interest in the experiences of young people seeking asylum in Europe While the significance of the role of age is recognized both youth transitions and trajectories beyond the age of eighteen are still largely unexplored the role and impact of mobility predominantly centering on experiences of movement from country of origin to country of settlement Inhabiting Borders Routes Home contends that in considering migration and settlement experiences of young refugees it is also important to consider the role of their mobility through age and transitions in the country of settlement Based on narrative research with young refugees this book explores how migration journeys are intertwined with life course journeys and transitions into adulthood shedding light on the manner in which gender intersects with age in experiences of migration and settlement with close attention to the processes by which home is understood and constructed Through the concept of home the book draws together and reflects on interconnections between integration in areas such as education or housing and experiences of social networks Examining experiences of the asylum process and the manner in which they are interwoven within a wider narrative of home both within and beyond Inhabiting Borders Routes Home will be of interest to social scientists working in the areas of migration asylum intersectionality and the life course

Project Independence United States. Federal Energy Administration, 1974 What is Project Independence The sources and uses of energy in the United States have changed dramatically in the last several decades As a result in just one generation we have shifted from a position of domestic energy abundance to a substantial and continually growing reliance on foreign energy sources Project Independence is a wide ranging program to evaluate this growing dependence on foreign sources of energy and to develop positive programs to reduce our vulnerability to future oil cut offs and price increases

Ayer & Son's American Newspaper Annual and Directory*, 1923 Alternative Agriculture: A History Joan Thirsk, 1997-10-09 People like to believe in a past golden age of traditional English countryside before large farms machinery and the destruction of hedgerows changed the landscape forever However that countryside may have looked both more and less familiar than we imagine Take today's startling yellow fields of rapeseed seemingly more suited to the landscape of Van Gogh than Constable. They were in fact thoroughly familiar to fieldworkers in seventeenth century England. At the same time some features that would have gone unremarked in the past now seem like oddities. In the fifteenth century rabbit warrens were specially guarded to rear rabbits as a luxury food for rich mens tables whilst houses had moats not only to defend them but to provide a source of fresh fish. In the 1500s we find Catherine of Aragon introducing the concept of a fresh salad to the court of Henry VIII and in the 1600s artichoke gardens became a fashion of the gentry in their hope of producing more male heirs. The common tomato suspected of being poisonous in 1837 was transformed into a household vegetable by the end of the nineteenth century thanks to cheaper glass making methods and the resulting increase in glasshouses. In addition to these images of past lives Joan Thirsk reveals how the forces which drive our current interest in alternative forms of agriculture a glut of meat and cereal crops changing dietary habits the needs of medicine have striking parallels with earlier periods in our history. She warns us that todays decisions should not be made in a historical vacuum we can find solutions to our current problems in the experience of people in the past.
