SHOOTOUT IN SENDERO (EXRANGERS 8) Jim Miller, 2014-12-06 The Carston men return as Wash sets out on a two day journey to rescue one of his father's deputies after he is accused of murdering a prisoner attempting to escape in this thrilling addition to The Ex Rangers series Wash Carston has seen a lot of evil especially in his days as a Texas Ranger and Civil War soldier but he's never seen a town as plain cursed as Sendero When a message came in on the Twin Rifles new telegraph machine two weeks earlier asking for a prisoner to be picked up in Sendero Marshal Will Carston sent his deputy Joshua on the mission But when Joshua fails to return Wash Carston must set out to rescue him When he arrives Wash finds Joshua locked up in the hoosegow accused of murdering the prisoner he was sent to pick up as he tried to escape With problems coming from every corner of Sendero the only agreeable folks Wash can find are a tough young sharpshooter dying of consumption and a pretty waitress who's just a bit too friendly As a lynch mob gathers Wash stands ready to defend his father's deputy and uphold law and order with a blazing six gun in hand

Shootout in Sendero Jim Miller, 1992 When the deputy he sends to pick up a prisoner in Sendero fails to return Texas Ranger Wash Carson rides into Sendero to find him and discovers that his deputy has been jailed for murdering a prisoner Original Shooting Up Vanda Felbab-Brown, 2009-12-01 Most policymakers see counterinsurgency and counternarcotics policy as two sides of the same coin Stop the flow of drug money the logic goes and the insurgency will wither away But the conventional wisdom is dangerously wrongheaded as Vanda Felbab Brown argues in Shooting Up Counternarcotics campaigns particularly those focused on eradication typically fail to bankrupt belligerent groups that rely on the drug trade for financing Worse they actually strengthen insurgents by increasing their legitimacy and popular support Felbab Brown a leading expert on drug interdiction efforts and counterinsurgency draws on interviews and fieldwork in some of the world's most dangerous regions to explain how belligerent groups have become involved in drug trafficking and related activities including kidnapping extortion and smuggling Shooting Up shows vividly how powerful guerrilla and terrorist organizations including Peru's Shining Path the FARC and the paramilitaries in Colombia and the Taliban in Afghanistan have learned to exploit illicit markets In addition the author explores the interaction between insurgent groups and illicit economies in frequently overlooked settings such as Northern Ireland Turkey and Burma While aggressive efforts to suppress the drug trade typically backfire Shooting Up shows that a laissez faire policy toward illicit crop cultivation can reduce support for the belligerents and critically increase cooperation with government intelligence gathering When combined with interdiction targeting major traffickers this strategy gives policymakers a better chance of winning both the war against the insurgents and the war on drugs
