Shops and Shopkeeping in Eighteenth Century England Hoh-cheung Mui, Lorna H. Mui, 1989-01-01 Shops & Shopkeeping in Eighteenth Century England Hoh-cheung, Lorna H. Mui, 1987 Selling Textiles in the Long Eighteenth Century J. Stobart, B. Blonde, 2014-09-16 Textiles are a key component of the industrial and consumer revolutions yet we lack a coherent picture of how the marketing of textiles varied across the long 18th century and between different regions This book provides important new insights into the ways in which changes in the supply of textiles related to shifting patterns of demand Crime, Gender and Consumer Culture in Nineteenth-Century England Tammy C. Whitlock, 2016-12-05 Whilst the actual origins of English consumer culture are a source of much debate it is clear that the nineteenth century witnessed a revolution in retailing and consumption Mass production of goods improved transport facilities and more sophisticated sales techniques brought consumerism to the masses on a scale previously unimaginable Yet with this new consumerism came new problems and challenges Focusing on retailing in nineteenth century Britain this book traces the expansion of commodity culture and a mass consumer orientated market and explores the wider social and cultural implications this had for society Using trial records advertisements newspaper reports literature and popular ballads it analyses the rise criticism and entrenchment of consumerism by looking at retail changes around the period 1800 1880 and society's responses to them By viewing this in the context of what had gone before Professor Whitlock emphasizes the key role women played in this evolution and argues that the dazzling new world of consumption had beginnings that predate the later English French and American department store cultures It also challenges the view that women were helpless consumers manipulated by merchants use of colour light and display into excessive purchases or even driven by their desires into acts of theft With its interdisciplinary approach drawing on social and economic history gender studies cultural studies and the history of crime this study asks fascinating questions regarding the nature of consumer culture and how society reacts to the challenges this creates Gender, Taste, and Material Culture in Britain and North America, 1700-1830 John Styles, Amanda Vickery, 2006 Between 1700 and 1830 men and women in the English speaking territories framing the Atlantic gained unprecedented access to material things The British Atlantic was an empire of goods held together not just by political authority and a common language but by a shared material culture nourished by constant flows of commodities Diets expanded to include exotic luxuries such as tea and sugar the fruits of mercantile and colonial expansion Homes were furnished with novel goods like clocks and earthenware teapots the products of British industrial ingenuity This groundbreaking book compares these developments in Britain and North America bringing together a multi disciplinary group of scholars to consider basic questions about women men and objects in these regions In asking who did the shopping how things were used and why they became the subject of political dispute the essays show the profound significance of everyday objects in the eighteenth century Atlantic world Spaces of Consumption Jon Stobart, Andrew Hann, Victoria

Morgan,2013-01-11 A key theme is eighteenth century studies Authors come from fresh urban studies geography perspective Fits with older titles e g by John Brewer that Routledge have historically been well known for Cultures of Selling John Benson,Laura Ugolini,2006 This volume explores the cultural and social values attached to retail selling in various historical contexts and locations The articles shed light on different aspects of an activity that is both mundane and almost universal that of selling commodities for a profit This is a field of study that is of growing interest to scholars from a variety of disciplines but on which relatively little has yet been published The Silent Rhetoric of the Body Matthew Craske,2007 Matthew Craske looks closely at tomb sculptures in their social context He discusses a large number of monuments by many different sculptors all with a knowledge of the person commemorated and the circumstances behind the commission The Eighteenth Century ,1996 A Nation of Shopkeepers John Benson,Laura Ugolini,2003 This history of retailing in Britain looks at the development of retail forms the nature of consumerism and the consumer revolution the connection between property ownership and retail development and the complex relations between retailer identities and representations of the trade Eighteenth-century Ceramics Sarah Richards,1999 Numerous publications describe well the provenance of eighteenth century ceramics This book focuses instead on the producers and consumers of these new material goods It explains the economic conditions the new scientific knowledge the social and cultural transformations which formed these products Eighteenth Century Ceramics places British wares in a European context The book makes clear that British delftwares porcelains and creamwares were produced principally by middle class entrepreneurs for middle class consumers Although influenced by the continental manufactories British ceramics developed characteristics which reinforced the values and aspirations of a complex group of people who formed the commercial professional and new industrial middle classes The author investigates the impact refined ceramic wares made on the social practices and imaginative lives of eighteenth century society The Pre-industrial Consumer in England and America Carole Shammas,1990 This book is a comprehensive study of English and American consumers and consumption before industrialization and mass urbanization Shammas examines the changes in what rural households bought on the market and what they produced themselves She charts the incredible growth in what contemporaries called groceries tobacco sugar and caffeine drinks and in semi durables lighter textiles pottery glassware and paper products and discusses the effects of this growth on diet and domestic environment She also considers the process whereby the new goods got distributed The sudden proliferation of shops and their relationship to market towns and peddling is also treated in depth The comparison between England and America is of particular interest because the two were inextricably linked by trade and culture yet their material situation including land availability population density social structure and natural resources differed greatly Current notions about consumer revolutions and consumer societies are challenged and the author offers an alternative framework for evaluating changes in consumption patterns over time Transactions of the Historic Society of Lancashire and Cheshire for the Year ...
