Lydia Ginzburg's Prose Emily Van Buskirk, 2016-01-05 The Russian writer Lydia Ginzburg 1902-90 is best known for her Notes from the Leningrad Blockade and for influential critical studies such as On Psychological Prose investigating the problem of literary character in French and Russian novels and memoirs Yet she viewed her most vital work to be the extensive prose fragments composed for the desk drawer in which she analyzed herself and other members of the Russian intelligentsia through seven traumatic decades of Soviet history In this book the first full length English language study of the writer Emily Van Buskirk presents Ginzburg as a figure of previously unrecognized innovation and importance in the literary landscape of the twentieth century Based on a decade's work in Ginzburg's archives the book discusses previously unknown manuscripts and uncovers a wealth of new information about the author's life focusing on Ginzburg's quest for a new kind of writing adequate to her times She writes of universal experiences frustrated love professional failures remorse aging and explores the modern fragmentation of identity in the context of war terror and an oppressive state Searching for a new concept of the self and deeming the psychological novel a beloved academic specialty inadequate to express this concept Ginzburg turned to fragmentary narratives that blur the lines between history autobiography and fiction This full account of Ginzburg s writing career in many genres and emotional registers enables us not only to rethink the experience of Soviet intellectuals but to arrive at a new understanding of writing and witnessing during a horrific century

Soviet Art House Catriona Kelly,2021 Its unique ability to sway the masses has led many observers to consider cinema the artform with the greatest political force The images it produces can bolster leaders or contribute to their undoing Soviet filmmakers often had to face great obstacles as they struggled to make art in an authoritarian society that put them not only under ideological pressure but also imposed rigid economic constraints on the industry But while the Brezhnev era of Soviet filmmaking is often depicted as a period of great repression Soviet Art House reveals that the films made at the prestigious Lenfilm studio in this period were far more imaginative than is usually suspected In this pioneering study of a Soviet film studio author Catriona Kelly delves into previously unpublished archival documents and interviews memoirs and the films themselves to illuminate the ideological economic and aesthetic dimensions of filmmaking in the Brezhnev era She argues that especially the young filmmakers who joined the studio after its restructuring in 1961 revitalized its output and helped establish Leningrad as a leading center of oppositional art This unique insight into Soviet film production shows not only the inner workings of Soviet institutions before the system collapsed but also traces how filmmakers tirelessly dodged and negotiated contradictory demands to create sophisticated and highly original movies Russian Social Science Review
