Science Not Art Ten Scientists Diaries:

Science, Not Art Jon Turney, 2003-01-01 In Science not Art a young generation of first class scientists most of them Royal Society Young Fellows kept diaries over several months which reveal with an unusual honesty the frustrations comic ironies and occasional breakthroughs in the charged and highly competitive world of contemporary science What do mathematicians actually do How are hypotheses dreamed up and then tested in space physiology climate change or neuroscience And how does an intense commitment to understanding more about the world impact on scientists private lives

Art and Science Sian Ede, 2012-11-13 Is science the new art Scientists weave incredible stories invent wild hypotheses and ask difficult questions about the meaning of life They have insights into the workings of our bodies and minds which challenge the myths we make about our identities and selves They create visual images models and scenarios that are gruesome baffling or beguiling They say and do things that are ethically and politically shocking Contemporary scientists frequently talk about beauty and elegance artists hardly ever do While demonstrating how science is affecting the creation and interpretation of contemporary art this book proposes that artistic insights are as important on their own terms as those in science and that we can and should accommodate both forms of knowledge Featuring the work of artists such as Damien Hirst Christine Borland Bill Viola and Helen Chadwick and art science collaborative ventures involving Dorothy Cross Eduardo Kac and Stelarc it looks at the way new scientific explanations for the nature of human consciousness can influence our interpretation of art at the squeamish interventions being produced by artists relishing in new technologies and at art which takes on the dangers facing the fragile environment Seeing the world from the other point of view can inform the practice of both sides this book will provide new insights to artists scientists and the wider public turn a seemingly purely chronological event but one in search for great meanings and invested with loaded significances The editors wanted to seize the opportunity of the moment in order to pause and reflect on the sociology and history of social studies of science and technology The moment came and went and the new millennium barely nine months later thrust its historical marker upon the world through a horrendous and cruel shock in an unforeseen and unforeseeable way Since then the world appears more vulnerable and volatile fragmented and fraught with uncertainty The universal values as bequeathed by the Enlightenment are either refused or appear refuted The dream of a universal civilization which has accompanied the unfolding of the existing multiple modernities in their historically unique trajectories has been discarded and its promises in tatters New Scientist and Science Journal ,1990 English Mechanic and Mirror of Science and Art ,1923
