Elections Graham Gudgin,Peter Taylor,2024-10-31 In many elections especially those using single member constituency systems the allocation of seats is incommensurate with each party s share of the votes cast Seats Votes and the Spatial Organisation of Elections provides a convincing rigorous analysis of this disproportionality which has not been improved on since its publication over 30 years ago Its formal analysis illustrated by empirical examples from a range of countries stresses the importance of three geographies as key influences on how votes are translated into seats the geography of partisan support where people with different political persuasions cluster the homogeneity of those clusters and their relative size Its re publication makes this classic piece of spatial political science available to contemporary audiences for whom it is as relevant as when the book first appeared in 1979 Ron Johnston s introductory essay sets the work in context and identifies its importance as the foundation for three decades of subsequent work into this key feature of electoral system operation

Contemporary Attempts on Reforming the Japanese Policy Making Process Remi Bauer, 2013-08-28 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2010 in the subject Economics Case Scenarios grade 1 1 Cologne Business School K In course East Asia Management language English abstract On August 30 2009 Lower House elections for the bicameral Diet were held in Japan where the DPJ short for Democratic Party of Japan achieved a landslide victory Never before has the opposition party in Japan reached such a clear success in becoming the new ruling party of Japan and making the thus far dominant Liberal Democratic Party abbreviated as LDP the new opposition As the newly elected government argues that the Iron Triangle Model which dominates Japanese policy making processes is outdated and proposed plans on how to reform it new discussions about this post war concept arose Thus this paper will deal with the following questions In how far has the Iron Triangle Model been reformed in the recent years Is Japan shifting away from this post war model and what if anything has been achieved by contemporary reforms In how far are the reform attempts of former Prime Minister Koizumi and Prime Minister Hatoyama similar to each other The goal of the paper is to answer these questions while also giving a diligent insight and thorough understanding of the Iron Triangle Model Moreover this model for Japanese policy making and its up to dateness will be rated For answering these research questions not only the newly proposed plans of the Democratic Party of Japan are to be elaborated and evaluated but also the contemporary reform attempt of Koizumi Jun ichir which started in 2001 is to be explained While most scientific analyses and traditional studies tended to focus almost exclusively on either Prime Minister Koizumi s or Prime Minister Hatoyama s reform attempts in economic as well as institutional terms this paper spotlights on a juxtaposition of Koizumi Jun ichir and Hatoyama Yukio s institutional reforms The reform attempts will be compared and evaluated based on scientific journals and research papers that solely focus on one of the actors or specific topics discussed in this analysis combining their findings Also official government information publications by political parties and data from textbooks will deliver theoretical background and additional insight The theory applied to solve the research question is the Iron Triangle Model which characterizes Japanese policy making throughout the post war era An in depth evaluation of the model the actor s roles as well as the reform attempts themselves will be executed to present a sound juxtaposition
