Managing Education for Results Richard W. Hostrop,1975 Skills, Not Just Diplomas Lars Sondergaard,2012 Future growth in the countries in Eastern Europe and Central Asia ECA will increasingly depend on innovation And innovation requires skills This makes it important as countries plan for recovery to undertake reforms to reduce the skills shortages that the previous growth episode exposed Education systems have a very important role to play in creating the right skills But education systems in the region fall short of the demands of their economies in two major ways The first is that despite high levels of enrollment they do not produce enough graduates with the right skills Students graduate with diplomas not with skills because the quality of the education for many students is poor In large part this is because education systems remain focused on providing an excellent education to a few at the expense of improving the quality of learning for the majority Moreover the systems are still making the transition from teaching the basics to inculcating higher order skills such as critical thinking and problem solving The second way in which education systems fall short is that outside of a few countries in the EU there are few opportunities for adults to retrain or acquire new skills This book argues that generating more of the right skills requires a fundamental change of approach in the education systems in the region so that they aim for and deliver higher quality education for the vast majority of students not just diplomas but skills To start with education systems need to turn the lights on and take seriously the measurement of what students actually learn as opposed to measurement of the inputs into the education process on the implicit assumption that learning follows Policy makers also need to move away from the focus on inputs and processes and increase the emphasis on incentives Managing Education for Results [By]

Managing for Learning Melissa Adelman,Renata Lemos,2021-05-20 How can countries make sustainable gains in student learning at scale This is a pressing question for Latin America and the Caribbean LAC and the developing world more broadly as countries seek to build human capital to drive sustainable growth Significant progress in access has expanded coverage such that nearly all children in the region attend primary school but many do not gain basic skills and drop out before completing secondary school in part due to low quality service delivery The preponderance of evidence shows that it is learning and not schooling in and of itself that contributes to individual earnings economic growth and reduced inequality For LAC in particular low levels of human capital are a critical factor in explaining the region s relatively weak growth performance over the last half century The easily measurable inputs are well known and the end goal is relatively clear but raising student achievement at scale remains a challenge Why Part of the answer lies in management the managers structures and practices that guide how inputs into the education system are translated into outputs and ultimately outcomes While management is often mentioned as an important factor in education policy discussions relatively little quantitative research has been done to define and measure it And even less has been done to unpack how and how much management matters for education quality This study presents new conceptual and empirical contributions that can be synthesized in four key messages 1 Student learning is unlikely to improve at scale without better management 2 Management quality can be measured and should be measured as a catalyst for improvement 3 Management affects how well every level of an education system functions from individual schools to central technical units and how well they work together 4 Several pathways to strengthening management are open to LAC countries now with the potential for significant results The study elaborates on each of these messages synthesizing recent data and research and presenting the results of several new research initiatives from across the region

not until quite recently that studies on EI have considered the importance of individual differences in EI and their interaction with cognitive abilities The general issue of this Research Topic was to expose the role of individual differences on EI in the development of a large number of competencies that support a more efficient performance in people s everyday life The present Research Topic provide an extensive review that may give light to the better understanding of how individual differences in EI affect human behaviour We have considered studies that analyse 1 how EI contributes to emotional cognitive and social process beyond the well known contribution of IQ and personality traits as well as the brain system that supports the EI 2 how EI contributes to relationships among emotions and health and well being 3 the roles of EI during early development and the evaluation in different populations 4 how implicit beliefs about emotions and EI influence emotional abilities
