Machinery Of Death:

Machinery of Death David Dow, Mark Dow, 2002 First Published in 2002 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company The Machinery of Death Amnesty International USA, 1995 An International perspective on a US violation of human rights Here are first person accounts of the injustices inherent in the US capital punishment system prosecutorial misconduct inadequate investigation incompetent counsel perjured testimony withheld exculpatory evidence racial discrimination and more This moving work is based upon riveting testimony delivered at Amnesty's ICM Commission of Inquiry into the Death Penalty The Machinery of Death Meredith Whigham, 2005 Symposium, 2008 Three Decades of Tinkering with the Machinery of Death Mikaela Janet Malsin, 2016 This dissertation offers a rhetorical history of the Supreme Court's capital punishment jurisprudence through four pivotal cases each capturing the rhetorical milieu of a decade the 1970s 1980s and 1990s respectively I interrogate the fractured judicial voice constitutive rhetoric and pathos as I analyze Furman v Georgia McCleskey v Kemp Payne v Tennessee and Callins v Collins My readings suggest that in each capital punishment case the justices wrangled over the nature of rhetoric and its role in justifying or invalidating capital punishment Each analysis then identifies the fundamental rhetorical negotiations that animated the justices' opinions I argue that in Furman the question of capital punishment's constitutionality revealed a broader conflict over the Court's role in making decisions of life and death I isolate three loci of the rhetorical struggle at the heart of that conflict drawing upon the rhetoric of social change the rhetoric of history and stasis theory to illuminate the rhetoricity of the Court's dilemmas I read McCleskey v Kemp as a negotiation over the constitutive functions of judicial rhetoric in which the majority opinions rejected a notion of the Court's rhetoric as constitutive even as they constituted particular visions of social scientific evidence and of racial discrimination By contrast the minority opinions in McCleskey embraced the constitutive functions of judicial rhetoric I assess the last two cases from the early 1990s as conflicting approaches to the role of emotion in capital punishment decisionmaking The majority's decision in Payne validated the emotional undertones of disgust and vengeance toward the defendant and compassion for the victims while Blackmun's dissent in Callins focused on compassion for the defendant The Court in Payne also deflected the emotionality of its own rhetoric while the Callins dissent explicitly leveraged its emotionality I conclude with a discussion of the current state of the Court's death penalty jurisprudence and reflect upon the historical and rhetorical implications of the project Farm Machinery and Equipment, 1930 The Injury Fact Book Susan P. Baker, Brian O'Neill, Marvin J. Ginsburg, Guohua Li, 1991-10-24 This is a comprehensive but concise reference that documents the nature and importance of the injury problem in the United States For each of more than sixty causes of injury data are presented by age race sex geographic area urban rural residence and per capita income The second edition includes new chapters on injuries related to sports work aviation and large trucks Also new are many analyses subdivided by four racial groups as well as age and sex made possible by the use of mortality data from a seven year period The updated analyses of time trends throughout the book document major reductions in death rates over the past decade As a statistical compilation the book offers users a quick reference to valuable detail much of which would otherwise be inaccessible It also discusses reasons for many of the extreme differences among groups of people in injury death rates and describes promising avenues to prevention This accessible readable reference will be valuable to public health personnel physicians
