Sex Differences: A Land of Confusion Zachary Elliott, 2017-11-19 It s the 21st century and we are still being told that there are no differences between men and women and that any differences we think exist are simply the result of social constructs to claim otherwise is considered sexist and misogynistic Sociologists point to disparities in the workforce claiming these inequalities are the result of a patriarchal society Yet what if these disparities could be explained through men and women s own choices and inclinations What if instead of simply resulting from the patriarchy sexism or societal imposed gender roles these differences can be explained through a multitude of factors a mix of complex and interconnected variables A look at the current scientific literature on sex differences and their origins this paper reviews data from the fields of biology psychology evolutionary behavioral science neuroendocrinology and neurology showing the complicated and nuanced nature of average sex differences between males and females

Psychobiological Aspects of Sex Differences in Behavior Gail Ann Fosshage Stevens, 1977

From Sex Differences in Neuroscience to a Neuroscience of Sex Differences: New Directions and Perspectives Belinda Pletzer, 2015 This research topic aims to integrate scattered findings on sex differences in neuroscience into a broader theory of how the human brain is shaped by sex and sex hormones in order to cause the great variety of sex differences that are commonly observed It can be assumed that these differences didn't occur arbitrarily but that they rather determined and still determine evolutionary success of individuals and were shaped by the processes of natural and in particular sexual selection Therefore sex differences are not negligible and sex difference research cannot be discriminating against one sex or the other In fact a better understanding of the underlying causes of sex differences has great advantages for both men and women and society as a whole not only in terms of health care but in every aspect of life Gender equality can only work out if it is equally well understood for men and women what their individual resources and needs are Therefore it is of great importance to pave the way for identifying the underlying principles of structural and functional brain organization that cause men and women to act think and feel differently To this end it is of particular interest to identify possible similarities and interrelations between sex differences that did so far stand separately in order to investigate whether they share a common source To understand where a specific sex difference comes from and whether or not it is caused by the same principle as other sex differences it is necessary to explicitly link sex differences in behavior to their neuronal correlates and vice versa link sex differences in brain structure and function to their behavioral outcomes In particular a new understanding of male and female brain functioning may arise from findings on how sex hormones interact with various neurotransmitter systems In the past few years several findings demonstrated that women s behavior is influenced by the sex hormone fluctuations they experience naturally during their menstrual cycle to the extent that sex differences may only be detectable in one cycle phase but not another The study of menstrual cycle dependent effects gives important hints about which sex differences are activational and which are organizational Additionally it only recently came to attention that hormonal contraception may alter a women s mood cognition and behavior as a consequence of changes in brain structure and function The underlying mechanisms are so poorly understood that it is even hard to predict whether hormonal contraception will mask or amplify sex differences in a given task Since the oral hormonal contraceptive pill is meanwhile used by 100 million women worldwide and even by teenagers whose brains are not yet fully developed the question of how the synthetic steroids contained in hormonal contraceptives act on the brain is to be studied hand in hand with naturally occurring sex differences This topic summarizes the current state of the art in sex difference research and gives new perspectives in terms of hypothesis generation an methodology Both are necessary to gain a complete picture of what it is that makes a brain male or female and move towards a neuroscience of sex differences

Behavioral Sex Differences in Nonhuman Primates Gary Mitchell,1979 Sexing the Brain Lesley J. Rogers,2001
How much of sexual diversity is the result of nature versus nurture Prevailing theories today lean heavily toward nature Now a leading researcher in neuroscience and animal behavior shows how in recent history scientific claims about sex and gender differences have reflected the culture of the time Although the conviction that genetics can explain everything is now widespread the author demonstrates the interaction of culture and environment in the formation of behavioral traits and so provides an important corrective to popular notions of reductionism Starting with a summary of sex and gender studies Rogers explains the error of sex biasing especially the once assumed inferiority of women She then addresses several modern studies and investigations some of which assert that sex and gender differences are the product of genetic inheritance and hormones Rogers uses laboratory evidence from studies of animals that help illustrate the biologically fluid properties of sex and gender Sexing the Brain addresses a variety of topical questions Are there sex differences in how we think and feel Is language processed in different parts of the brain in men and women Do social influences have a stronger influence on sexual behavior than sex hormone levels Rogers concludes that our biology does not bind us to remain the same We have the ability to change and the future of sex differences belongs to us

Biology, Society, and Behavior Ann V. McGillicuddy-De Lisi,Richard De Lisi,2002 Applying current theory and research this book links the development of sex differences in cognition to biological foundations multiple social processes and contextual factors Areas covered include evolutionary biology neuroscience social roles and cultural contextualism and the issues of the onset causes developmental trajectories and patterns in children s and adolescents thinking problem solving academic performance and social conditions that are related to behaviors in each of these areas An edited volume with chapters by leading scholars this book is meant for use by graduate students researchers and practitioners in the fields of developmental cognitive and psychology learning and socialization biology and education Cognitive domains addressed include language and verbal abilities mathematical and quantitative abilities spatial abilities and social cognition

Women in Higher Education Ana M. Martínez Alemán, Kristen A. Renn, 2002-12-13 The only comprehensive encyclopedia on the subject of women in higher education America s first wave of feminists Susan B Anthony Elizabeth Cady Stanton and others included expanded opportunities for higher education in their Declaration of Sentiments at the first Women s Rights Convention in Seneca Falls New York in 1848 By then the first American institutions to educate women had been founded among them Mt Holyoke Seminary in 1837 However not until after the Civil War did most universities admit women and not for egalitarian purposes War casualties had caused a drop in enrollment and the states needed teachers Women students paid tuition but as teachers were paid salaries half that of men By the late 20th century there were more female than male students of higher education but women remained underrepresented at the higher levels of educational leadership and training This volume covers everything from historical and cultural context and gender theory to women in the curriculum and as faculty and administrators

Handbook of Sexology: Genetics, hormones, and behavior John Money, Herman Musaph, 1978

Exploring Gender and Sex Differences in Behavioral Dyscontrol: from Drug Addiction to Impulse Control Disorders Liana Fattore, Miriam Melis, 2016-04-13 Males and females exhibit discrete attitudes and skills experience dissimilar emotional and psychological needs and react differently to peer pressure lack of self realization or other personal and social expectations In addition they are differently influenced by family history and diverge in the perception of self image and health risks To complicate the matter on gender dichotomy male testosterone levels markedly vary over the course of the day while female levels of sex hormones significantly fluctuate depending upon the menstrual cycle the pre or post menopausal age and the use of oral contraceptives All of these factors interact with genetic background and sex hormonal fluctuations and determine the differences observed in their predisposition to develop an addiction This term is traditionally associated to the abuse of legal and illegal substances However a compulsion toward the engagement in a non drug related rewarding behavior usually involving a natural reward also activates the brain reward system and engenders persistent behavior thus resulting in a diminished control over it These latter behaviors are defined as behavioral addictions This definition encompasses any behavior characterized by the followings i feeling of tension or arousal before the action ii gratification and or relief at the time of performing the act iii inability to resist an urge or drive even against great obstacles or dangers iv absence of consideration for the negative consequences that may affect family friends and or work As such behavioral addictions include compulsive food intake and sexual activity pathological gambling and Internet addiction excessive exercising compulsive buying and pyromania These behaviors which are often classified as impulse control disorders result in actions that are harmful to oneself and or others share common features e g compulsiveness impulsivity impaired decision making craving tolerance withdrawal high rates of relapse and involve dysfunction of several brain circuits Derangement from functional neurobiological mechanisms underpinning both sensitivity to reward and inhibitory control can also lead to compulsive behaviors For instance pathological gambling and other impulse control disorders e g hypersexuality compulsive painting eating and buying are often reported in Parkinson s disease patients Gender dependent differences in the rate of initiation and frequency of misuse of addicting drugs have been widely described Yet men and women also differ in their propensity to become addicted to other rewarding stimuli e g sex food or activities e g gambling exercising The goal of the present Research Topic is to explore and summarize current evidence for gender and sex differences not only in drug addiction but also in other forms of addictive behaviors Thus it will include studies showing gender dependent differences in drug addiction food addiction compulsive sexual activity pathological gambling Internet addiction and physical exercise addiction Psychiatric comorbidity potential risk factors and the underlying neural mechanisms will be also examined with particular emphasis to the role of sex hormones in modulating addictive and compulsive behaviors Resources in Women's Educational Equity ,1980-04 Resources in Women's Educational Equity: Special Issue ,1979
