Academy-Industry Relationships and Partnerships Tracy Bridgeford, Kirk St. Amant, 2017-07-05 In the field of technical communication academics and industry practitioners alike regularly encounter the same question What exactly is it you do Their responses often reveal a fundamental difference of perspective on what the field is and how it operates For example academics might discuss ideas in terms of rhetorical theory while practitioners might explain concepts through more practical approaches involving best business practices And such differences can have important implications for how the field as a whole moves forward over time This collection explores ideas related to forging effective academia industry relationships and partnerships so members of the field can begin a dialogue designed to foster communication and collaboration among academics and industry practitioners in technical communication To address the various factors that can affect such interactions the contributions in this collection represent a broad range of approaches that technical communicators can use to establish effective academy industry partnerships and relationships in relation to an area of central interest to both education The 11 chapters thus present different perspectives on and ideas for achieving this goal In so doing the contributors discuss programmatic concerns workplace contexts outreach programs and research and writing The result is a text that examines different general contexts in which academia industry relationships and partnerships can be established and maintained It also provides readers with a reference for exploring such interactions

Sharing Our Intellectual Traces Tracy

Bridgeford, Karla Saari Kitalong, Bill Williamson, 2016-11-03 Administrators of academic professional and technical communication PTSC programs have long relied upon lore stories of what works to understand and communicate about the work of program administration. Stories are interesting, telling, engaging, and necessary. But a discipline focused primarily on stories, especially the ephemeral stories narrated at conferences and deliberated at department meetings, usually suffices primarily to solve immediate problems and address day-to-day concerns and activities. This edited collection captures some of those stories and layers them with theoretical perspectives and reflection to enhance their usefulness to the PTSC program administration community at large. Like the ephemeral stories, PTSC program administrators are accustomed to the stories told in this volume; they are set within specific institutional contexts that reflect specific institutional challenges. They emphasize the intellectual traces, the debts the authors owe to those who have informed and transformed their administrative work. In so doing, this collection creates another conversation, albeit a robust, diverse, and theoretically informed one, around which program leaders might define or redefine their roles and re-envision their administrative work as the rich, complex intellectual engagement that we find it to be. This volume asks authors to move beyond a notion of administration as an activity based solely in institutional details and processes. In so doing, they emphasize theory as they share their reflections on core administrative processes and significant moments in the histories of their associated programs, thereby affording opportunities for critical examination in conjunction with practical advice.

Integrating Engineering Education and Humanities for Global Intercultural Perspectives Zhanna Anikina, 2020-05-06

This book presents papers from the International Conference on Integrating Engineering Education and Humanities for Global Intercultural Perspectives (IEEHGIP 2020) held on 25-27 March 2020. Focusing on, but not limited to, Content and Language Integrated Learning (CLIL) in Russian education, the book will appeal to a wide academic audience seeking ways to initiate positive changes in education.

Technical Communication: Perspectives for the Eighties, Part 1.

Proceedings of the Technical Communications Sessions at the 32nd Annual Meeting of the Conference on College Composition and Communication, 1981 Foundations for Teaching Technical Communication Katherine Staples, Cezar M. Ornatowski, 1997-12-31

This is designed to be a seminal textbook for researchers and teachers of scientific and technical communication. It draws together contributions from scholars in the field covering the three broad themes of theory, practice, and program design while focusing on topics of contemporary concern. These include insights into the relevance of cognitive psychology for technical communication, ethics and multicultural issues, impact of new technologies, visual communication, design of teaching and research programmes, and quality and evaluation.

Innovative Approaches to Teaching

Technical Communication Tracy Bridgeford, Karla Saari Kitalong, Dickie Selfe, 2004 Innovative Approaches to Teaching Technical Communication offers a variety of activities, projects, and approaches to energize pedagogy in technical communication and to provide a constructive critique of current practice A practical collection the approaches recommended here are readily adaptable to a range of technological and institutional contexts as well as being theoretically grounded and pedagogically sound Throughout the collection its editors and contributors demonstrate the importance of critically engaging students through creative and innovative pedagogies Programs in technical writing technical communication and or professional communication have recently grown in enrollment as the demand among employers for formally prepared technical writers and editors has grown In response scholarly treatments of the subject and the teaching of technical writing are also burgeoning and the body of research and theory being published in this field is many times larger and more accessible than it was even a decade ago Although many theoretical and disciplinary perspectives can potentially inform technical communication teaching administration and curriculum development the actual influences on the field s canonical texts have traditionally come from a rather limited range of disciplines Innovative Approaches to Teaching Technical Communication brings together a wide range of scholars teachers to expand the existing canon The editors and authors in this volume suggest that for various reasons the field has not been as flexible or open to innovation as it needs to be Given pervasive technological and workplace changes and changing cultural attitudes they say new and more dynamic pedagogies in technical communication are warranted and they are addressing this collection to that need Contributing authors include a number of scholars with a strong record of work in composition technical writing professional communication and allied areas e g Selfe Wahlstrom Kalmbach Duin Hansen who deliver a variety of approaches that are grounded in current theory and represent pedagogical creativity and innovation
