The beginning of the story The Romans having effected the subjugation of Gaul committed the government of the conquered province to Pollio a Pro Consul who became enamored of Norma daughter of the Arch Druid Druidism being at that time the religion of the country who besides the respect awarded her from the consideration of her birth and connections was regarded by the superstitious multitude as the unerring oracle through whom their grand deity Irminsul condescended to convey to his faithful votaries his divine decrees The Gauls although submitting to the Roman yoke are burning with the desire to expel the haughty strangers from their native forests and impatiently wait for a signal from Irminsul through the High priestess Norma to arise in arms against their oppressors Norma however having been secretly united to Pollio the consequence of which union being the birth of two children has always repressed their anger and exhorted them to patience When the Drama opens Pollio has deserted Norma and transferred his affections to Adalgisa a young Priestess of the Temple of Irminsul who permits a reciprocal passion to kindle in her bosom for the faithless Roman who after much persuasion succeeds In gaining her consent to abandon the Temple and fly with him to Rome Remorse however soon takes possession of her breast and in her agony she resolves to reveal all to Norma who Is already stung with a consciousness of slighted love The anger of Norma is transformed into the wildest fury on learning from Adalgisa that Pollio is the seducer of her affections At this moment Pollio enters and is bitterly reproached by Norma for his Infidelity and baseness Pollio insensible to her anger tries to inveigle Adalgisa in the very presence of Norma but Adalgisa recoils from him and amid the reiterated expressions of Norma s wrath the Roman retires baffled in his base designs Norma then still under the influence of rage resolves on the destruction of her children But on approaching the simple couch where the little beings enjoy the sweet sleep of childhood with dagger uplifted and ready to strike the full tide of maternal feeling rushes into her heart and arrests her arm She then resolves to sacrifice her life for the sake of her children She sends for Adalgisa and entrusting the children to her care enjoins her to take them with her to their father and bo happy with him Norma herself intending to give herself up to the law which binds the Priestesses of the Temple of Esus to strict celibacy under penalty of death by Are for violation of this regulation Adalgisa moved by her distress and conscious that she herself although unwittingly is the cause of the sufferings of her friend endeavors to allay her perturbation and promises to persuade Pollio to return to her In anticipation of her success Norma becomes more tranquil and indulges hopes of brighter days This illusion is of short duration Clotilde soon after informs her that Adalgisa has been unsuccessful and that the Roman persists in his determination to possess her Upon this information Norma s fury knows no bounds She rushes to the sacred shield suspended at the altar and strikes it thrice thereby summoning Priests and warriors to the Temple to hear the commands of
