TREE OF LIFE

Roots - Identification

Identify the individual's core values, beliefs, and experiences that are the foundation of their life. These are the things that are most important to them and that they want to pass on to their children.

Ground - Values

Identify the individual's core values, beliefs, and experiences that are the foundation of their life. These are the things that are most important to them and that they want to pass on to their children.

NARRATIVE THERAPY

Definition/History

A collaborative approach that empowers people to create their own stories and meanings, rather than being defined by their problems and symptoms. It focuses on the person's strengths and resources, rather than their deficits and weaknesses.

Basic Philosophy

- People are the experts on their own lives.
- Narrative helps us understand, meaning, and make sense of our lives and our relationships.

Key Concepts

- Externalize the problem: Separate the person from the problem.
- Deconstruct the problem: Break the problem down into smaller parts.
- Rewrite the story: Create a new, more empowering story.

Therapeutic Goals

- Increase awareness and understanding of the client's experiences.
- Develop new meanings and understandings of the client's strengths and abilities.
- Build confidence through positive reframing and self-empowerment.
- Strengthen connections with support systems.

Challenges

Engaging clients who are resistant, addressing complex issues, finding clients who are not ready for narrative therapy.

Research Evidence

- Talking One to Many: Positive effects on self-esteem and self-efficacy.
- Externalization: Reduces the power of the problem and increases the person's sense of control.
- Deconstruction: Helps clients see the problem in a new way, making it easier to address and change.
- Rewrite the Story: Clients who rewrite their stories show improved outcomes in terms of self-esteem and self-efficacy.

Therapeutic Process

- Assessment of the client's story: Understanding the client's current story and its impact on their life.
- Externalization: Helping the client see the problem as something separate from them.
- Deconstruction: Helping the client see the problem in a new way, making it easier to address and change.
- Rewrite the Story: Helping the client create a new, more empowering story.

Assessment of the Problem

Helping the client explore the problem from their perspective, seeing it as an external entity that exists in their world.

Key Activities

- Personal Problem Definition: Encourage clients to define the problem in their own words, making it external to their personal experience.
- Map the Problem's Effects: Explore how the problem impacts the client's life, including emotions, behaviors, and relationships.
- Externalize the Problem: Help the client see the problem as something separate from them.
- Apply the Externalization: Help clients apply their externalization, helping them understand and manage the problem.

Deconstructing the Problem

Helping the client explore the problem from their perspective, seeing it as an external entity that exists in their world.

Key Activities

- Identify the Problem's Effects: Explore how the problem impacts the client's life, including emotions, behaviors, and relationships.
- Map the Problem's Effects: Explore how the problem impacts the client's life, including emotions, behaviors, and relationships.
- Externalize the Problem: Help the client see the problem as something separate from them.

Externalizing Conversations

Helping the client explore the problem from their perspective, seeing it as an external entity that exists in their world.

Key Activities

- Personal Problem Definition: Encourage clients to define the problem in their own words, making it external to their personal experience.
- Map the Problem's Effects: Explore how the problem impacts the client's life, including emotions, behaviors, and relationships.
- Externalize the Problem: Help the client see the problem as something separate from them.

Rewriting the Problem

Helping the client explore the problem from their perspective, seeing it as an external entity that exists in their world.

Key Activities

- Externalize the Problem: Help the client see the problem as something separate from them.

Cheat Sheet

of externalizing challenges and reframing their power and resilience through externalization.
