Sinew Man

John Ogilvie

Sinew Man:

Sinews of Survival Betty Issenman,1997 Betty Issenman examines all aspects of winter and summer Inuit clothing going back 4000 years with particular emphasis on northern Canadian Inuit She also describes the kinds of material and tools used to make the clothing The focus is on on Inuit clothing as protection identity and culture bearer roles it has played for thousands of years No other book brings together contemporary and historical material from the circumpolar worlds with original research Sinews of Survival is a fascinating study of Inuit clothing past and present It includes over 200 illustrations of various kinds of clothing The voices of the Inuit are heard throughout the text in quotations from consultations and the literature By describing one component of Inuit society the author opens a pathway to understanding the culture as a whole

Lindow Man Jody Joy,2009 Lindow Man was accidentally discovered by peat cutters in Cheshire in the 1980s He was first thought to be a modern murder victim but scientific investigations soon proved that he had died in the first century AD around the time of the Roman conquest of Britain The environment of the peat bog had kept his body in a remarkable state of preservation and he is still providing a wealth of information to researchers about the diet and health of people at that time Many theories have been put forward about his death He was apparently struck on the head strangled and his throat was cut before he went into the marsh Does this literal overkill indicate that he was a sacrificial victim Experts are still trying to understand exactly how he died Other bog bodies have been found in Ireland and Scandinavia what are the possible connections Jody Joy tells the gripping and gruesome story of the discovery examination and Lindow Man and explores the many unanswered questions which remain
