Police Station Skills Kit:

Police Station Skills for Legal Advisers Consultant Forensic Psychologist Eric Shepherd, Eric Shepherd, 2004-07-01 The third edition of Police Station Skills for Legal Advisers is an essential reference for those engaged in the active defence of clients in the police station. It is aimed at all legal advisers both solicitors and legal representatives whether seeking accreditation already accredited or responsible for supervising those seeking accreditation and for quality control of defence provided in the police station. The Accreditation Manual examines the defender role, introduces new and established practitioner tools, and comprehensively addresses all the critical issues at each stage of skilled defence from the initial request to attend the police station, including key consultations with the custody officer, the investigating officer, the client, the appropriate adult, and the interpreter. It provides a unique insight into police investigation, custody processes, and assessment by police staff and police surgeons, pre-interview disclosure, and investigative interviewing. Police Station Skills Eric Shepherd, 1998-12 Coordinated information sharing and homeland security United States. Congress. House. Committee on Government Reform. Subcommittee on Technology and Procurement Policy, 2003 The New Law Journal, 1994

Police Station Skills for Legal Advisers Eric Shepherd, Roger Ede, Anthony Edwards, 1996-01 TREATING POLICE STRESS John M. Madonna, Richard E. Kelly, 2002-01-01 This is an important work that addresses a very timely issue: police stress and its treatment. Its authors both hold doctoral degrees in education and teach at the university level. In addition, both gentlemen have extensive experience treating police stress. The book begins by tracing the history of the treatment or lack thereof of police stress, specifically its treatment by peers. It describes the obstacles peer counselors face and their tactics for addressing them. It goes into detail regarding the types of stress that officers face on the job and the ways in which these stresses make this work so very different from other jobs. It also provides statistics regarding the high rates of divorce, suicide, illness, and premature death that police are subject to. In these ways, it provides a strong argument supporting the establishment of stress reduction programs for police. The book also makes it clear that peers are uniquely qualified to do this counseling work; they have been there and can gain the respect and trust more easily than an outsider. It recounts instances of successful peer counseling and instances of sad failure. The book artfully presents the results of extensive surveys and interviews of the people involved in a large peer counseling program from both the peers and those they counsel. Perhaps most important, departments and organizations wishing to emulate the work that is profiled will find this to be an invaluable guide. Jet-set, 1989 The Solicitors' Journal, 1994 Recovering Police Legitimacy Rafe McGregor, 2024-07-11 Transatlantic policing is experiencing an unprecedented crisis of legitimacy epitomised by public responses to the murders of George Floyd and Sarah Everard during the COVID-19 pandemic. Legitimacy is lost when the police either fail to protect the public or rely on coercion rather than consent to achieve that protection. Recovering Police Legitimacy challenges conventional criminological, political, and public solutions to the problem by approaching it from the bottom up beginning with policing as a practice constituted by a unique set of excellences skills and characteristics The author draws on his experience as a police officer and on the serial fictions of James Ellroy David Peace and Nic Pizzolatto to characterise the practice in terms of heroic struggle edgework absolute sacrifice and worldmaking These characteristics provide an analytic tool for revolutionising our understanding of the relations among policing as a situated practice public protection and police legitimacy and for identifying the different levels at which legitimacy is undermined His conclusion is that recovery is possible but will be slow in pace and incomplete in scope Written accessibly for students police officers policymakers scholars and anyone with an interest in police legitimacy this is a groundbreaking study of a pressing social problem

Suspicion and Silence David Morgan, Geoffrey Michael Stephenson, 1994 The Criminal Justice and Public Order Bill includes provisions to restrict a defendant's right to silence in response to police questioning and in the courts Supporters of this change argue that the right to silence is an anachronistic impediment to justice and its abolition would lead to the conviction of more guilty offenders in the courts However there is growing concern that removal of this age old right will expose suspects to far greater pressures from the police and increase the risks of false confessions and miscarriages of justice

Medicine, Science, and the Law, 1994 Basic Life Functions Instructional Program Model Wisconsin. Division for Handicapped Children, 1975 Road Policing and Technology Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee, 2006-10-31 In 2005 traffic collisions killed 3 201 people with almost 29 000 seriously injured on British roads Although the level of road crash fatalities and injuries has fallen over successive decades and Britain has one of the safest road environments in the world the numbers still remain far too high and many of these casualties might have been avoided if there was a higher level of compliance with traffic law The Committee s report examines the road casualty problem focusing on the role of roads policing and the contribution which enforcement can make to casualty reduction It considers how technology is influencing the policing and enforcement of particular offences relating to speeding drink and drug driving driving whilst using a mobile phone and driving while impaired by fatigue The report finds that despite progress made by the Department for Transport against its 2010 casualty reduction targets the Home Office has continued to deny traffic law enforcement issues the priority it requires and must explicitly adopt the targets as a key part of its future national policing plans Investment and research into new technological equipment such as roadside breath testing equipment and time distance cameras and a higher profile and more visible traffic enforcement effort would bring important casualty reductions However the efficiencies which technology can bring should not be seen as a opportunity to cut the number of roads police officers as technology alone cannot carry out the multitude of functions undertaken by roads police officers
