

Scientific Materialism

- Scientific Materialism accepts only one reality: the physical universe, composed as it is of matter and energy. Everything that is not physical, measurable, or deducible from scientific observations, is considered unreal. Life is explained in purely mechanical terms, and phenomena such as Mind and Consciousness are considered nothing but epiphenomena - curious by-products, of certain complex physical processes (such as brain metabolism)

Scientific Materialism:

Scientific Materialism M. Bunge, 2012-12-06 The word materialism is ambiguous it designates a moral doctrine as well as a philosophy and indeed an entire world view Moral materialism is identical with hedonism or the doctrine that humans should pursue only their own pleasure Philosophical materialism is the view that the real world is composed exclusively of material things The two doctrines are logically independent hedonism is consistent with immaterialism and materialism is compatible with high minded morals We shall be concerned exclusively with philosophical materialism And we shall not confuse it with realism or the epistemological doctrine that knowledge or at any rate scientific knowledge attempts to represent reality Philosophical materialism is not a recent fad and it is not a solid block it is as old as philosophy and it has gone through six quite different stages The first was ancient materialism centered around Greek and Indian atomism The second was the revival of the first during the 17th century The third was 18th century materialism partly derived from one side of Descartes ambiguous legacy The fourth was the mid 19th century scientific materialism which flourished mainly in Germany and England and was tied to the upsurge of chemistry and biology The fifth was dialectical and historical materialism which accompanied the consolidation of the socialist ideology And the sixth or current stage evolved mainly by Australian and American philosophers is academic and nonpartisan but otherwise very heterogeneous Ancient materialism was thoroughly mechanistic

The Taboo of Subjectivity B. Alan Wallace, 2004-02-12 This book takes a bold new look at ways of exploring the nature origins and potentials of consciousness within the context of science and religion Alan Wallace draws careful distinctions between four elements of the scientific tradition science itself scientific realism scientific materialism and scientism Arguing that the metaphysical doctrine of scientific materialism has taken on the role of ersatz religion for its adherents he traces its development from its Greek and Judeo Christian origins focusing on the interrelation between the Protestant Reformation and the Scientific Revolution He looks at scientists long term resistance to the firsthand study of consciousness and details the ways in which subjectivity has been deemed taboo within the scientific community In conclusion Wallace draws on William James's idea for a science of religion that would study the nature of religious and in particular contemplative experience In exploring the nature of consciousness this groundbreaking study will help to bridge the chasm between religious belief and scientific knowledge It is essential reading for philosophers and historians of science scholars of religion and anyone interested in the relationship between science and religion

Science and Religion John F. Haught, 1995 Has science made religion intellectually implausible Does it rule out the existence of a personal God In an age of science can we really believe that the universe has a purpose And finally doesn't religion hold much of the blame for the present ecological crisis These questions form the nucleus of today's debate between science and religion This book is a guide for that debate identifying the questions isolating the issues and pointing to ways the questions can be resolved There are four possible ways says John F Haught that we can view the relationship between religion and science First they can stand in complete opposition the conflict position Or we can believe they are so different that conflict is impossible the contrast position A third approach holds that while science and religion are distinct each has important implications for the other A fourth way views them as different but mutually supportive

HyperHumanity Mike Hockney,2013-07-28 Humanity is a single biological species but has split into two different mental species labelled Mythos and Logos The Mythos species is driven by emotional stories not by facts evidence or rational arguments Even scientific materialism is a Mythos the sensory Mythos which asserts that rational unobservables undetectable by the senses simply cannot exist The Enlightenment the Age of Reason was when Logos humanity came to the fore HyperHumanity is the upgrade of Logos humanity that advocates Hyperrationalism Old Humanity stuck in its irrational Mythos past will become extinct The future is about the new human race HyperHumanity Do you belong to the Illuminated Ones the Shining Ones the Divine Ones or are you on your knees to some story book God an irrational market or irrational devotion to your physical senses HyperHumanity is not here to help Old Humanity It is here to replace it We are the true human race that which seeks to claim its rightful prize divinity

When Science Meets Religion Ian G. Barbour,2013-02-05 For centuries scientists theologians and the general public have debated the question what impact should scientific discoveries have on religion The argument has been so heated at times that some scientists like Galileo were forced to recant their conclusions by Church authorities In When Science Meets Religion nuclear physicist and theologian Ian Barbour presents a clear contemporary introduction to the essential issues ideas and solutions in the relationship between religion and science Barbour who was awarded the 1999 Templeton Prize for Progress in Religion for his pioneering role in advancing the study of religion and science addresses creation and the Big Bang quantum physics and ultimate reality evolution and continuing creation and many other fascinating topics that cross the boundary between laboratory and pulpit Ian Barbour is Professor Emeritus of Physics and Religion at Carleton College Northfield Minn He was named the winner of 1999 Templeton Prize for Progress in Religion for his pioneering role in establishing the study of religion and science He donated the 1.42 million prize to the Berkeley Center for the Study of Theology and Science and to Carleton College He is the author of many books including Religion and Science Ethics in an Age of Technology and Religion in an Age of Science No surer and fairer guide to the proliferating literature on the relation of science and religion can be found than Ian Barbour Arthur Peacocke Oxford University author of From DNA to Dean Reflections Explorations of a Priest Scientist Embracing Mind B. Alan Wallace, Brian Hodel, 2008 Both science and spirituality search for ultimate truths But the human capacity for exploring these sources of truth the one thing that unites science and spirituality is often overlooked Embracing Mind presents a viable science of the mind emanating from contemplative spirituality Matter and Mind Mario Bunge, 2010-09-14 This book discusses two of the oldest and hardest problems in both science and philosophy What is matter and What is mind A reason for tackling both problems in a single book is that two of the most influential views in modern philosophy are that the universe is mental idealism and that the everything real is material materialism Most of the thinkers who espouse a materialist view of mind have obsolete ideas about matter whereas those who claim that science supports idealism have not explained how the universe could have existed before humans emerged Besides both groups tend to ignore the other levels of existence chemical biological social and technological If such levels and the concomitant emergence processes are ignored the physicalism spiritualism dilemma remains unsolved whereas if they are included the alleged mysteries are shown to be problems that science is treating successfully Science and the Scientific Mind Warren Edgar Gibbs, 1930
