The Museums of Contemporary Art J. Pedro Lorente, 2016-03-03 Where how by whom and for what were the first museums of contemporary art created These are the key questions addressed by J Pedro Lorente in this new book In it he explores the concept and history of museums of contemporary art and the shifting ways in which they have been imagined and presented Following an introduction that sets out the historiography and considering questions of terminology the first part of the book then examines the paradigm of the Mus e des Artistes Vivants in Paris and its equivalents in the rest of Europe during the nineteenth century The second part takes the story forward from 1930 to the present presenting New York s Museum of Modern Art as a new universal role model that found emulators or contramodels in the rest of the Western world during the twentieth century An epilogue reviews recent museum developments in the last decades Through its adoption of a long term worldwide perspective the book not only provides a narrative of the development of museums of contemporary art but also sets this into its international perspective By assessing the extent to which the great museum capitals Paris London and New York in particular created their own models of museum provision as well as acknowledging the influence of such models elsewhere the book uncovers fascinating perspectives on the practice of museum provision and reveals how present cultural planning initiatives have often been shaped by historical uses Museums and Centers of Contemporary Art in Central Europe after 1989 Katarzyna Jagodzińska, 2019-07-02 Museums and Centers of Contemporary Art in Central Europe is a comprehensive study of the ecosystem of art museums and centers in the Czech Republic Hungary Poland and Slovakia

Focusing on institutions founded after 1989 the book analyses a thirty year boom in art exhibition space in these regions as well as a range of socio political influences and curatorial debates that had a significant impact upon their development Tracing the inspiration for the increase in art institutions and the models upon which these new spaces were based Jagodziska offers a unique insight into the history of museums in Central Europe Providing analysis of a range of issues including private and public patronage architecture and changing visions of national museums of art the book situates these newly founded institutions within their historical political and museological contexts Considering whether and in what ways they can be said to have a shared regional identity that is distinct from institutions elsewhere this valuable contribution paints a picture of the region in its entirety from the perspective of new institutions of art Offering the first comprehensive study on the topic Museums and Centers of Contemporary Art in Central Europe should be of great interest to academics researchers and postgraduate students engaged in the study of museums art history and architecture The Museums of Contemporary Art J. Pedro Lorente, 2016-03-03 Where how by whom and for what were the first museums of contemporary art created These are the key questions addressed by J Pedro Lorente in this new book In it he explores the concept and history of museums of contemporary art and the shifting ways in which they have been imagined and presented Following an introduction that sets out the historiography and considering questions of terminology the first part of the book then examines the paradigm of the Musée des Artistes Vivants in Paris and its equivalents in the rest of Europe during the nineteenth century The second part takes the story forward from 1930 to the present presenting New York's Museum of Modern Art as a new universal role model that found emulators or contramodels in the rest of the Western world during the twentieth century An epilogue reviews recent museum developments in the last decades Through its adoption of a long term worldwide perspective the book not only provides a narrative of the development of museums of contemporary art but also sets this into its international perspective By assessing the extent to which the great museum capitals Paris London and New York in particular created their own models of museum provision as well as acknowledging the influence of such models elsewhere the book uncovers fascinating perspectives on the practice of museum provision and reveals how present cultural planning initiatives have often been shaped by historical uses Museums and Wealth Nizan Shaked, 2022-01-13 Choice Outstanding Academic Title 2023 A critical analysis of contemporary art collections and the value form this book shows why the nonprofit system is unfit to administer our common collections and offers solutions for diversity reform and redistributive restructuring In the United States institutions administered by the nonprofit system have an ambiguous status as they are neither entirely private nor fully public Among nonprofits the museum is unique as it is the only institution where trustees tend to collect the same objects they hold in public trust on behalf of the nation if not humanity The public serves as alibi for establishing the symbolic value of art which sustains its monetary value and its markets This structure allows for wealthy individuals at the helm to gain financial benefits from and ideological control over what is at its core purpose a public system

The dramatic growth of the art market and the development of financial tools based on art collateral loans exacerbate the contradiction between the needs of museum leadership versus that of the public. Indeed a history of private support in the US is a history of racist discrimination and the common collections reflect this fact. A history of how private collections were turned public gives context. Since the late Renaissance private collections legitimized the prince's right to rule and later with the great revolutions display consolidated national identity. But the rise of the American museum reversed this and re-privatized the public collection. A materialist description of the museum as a model institution of the liberal nation state reveals constellations of imperialist social relations.

Collective Vision Museum of Contemporary Art (Chicago, Ill.), 1996-01

It is said that art reveals the heart of humankind architecture the soul of civilization. This summer heart and soul will merge in the new building for Chicago's Museum of Contemporary Art. Designed by famous Berlin architect Josef Paul Kleihues his first U.S. commission the new MCA stands beside both celebrated Michigan Avenue and the city's stunning lake shore. This book examines the entire process of starting and then dramatically expanding a contemporary art museum from the tumultuous sixties to the cusp of a new century. The MCA's achievements such as Christo's first wrapping of a public building 1969, Frida Kahlo's first U.S. exhibition 1978 and Jeff Koons's first full scale museum exhibition 1988 are discussed accompanied by historic photographs. In his essay Josef Paul Kleihues Chicago and Berlin art and architecture critic Franz Schulze considers the conceptual framework of Kleihues's design for the MCA as well as the architect's adaptive reuse of the Hamburger Bahnhof train station to house Berlin's Museum of Contemporary Art. Finally color reproductions of 40 works from the vast MCA permanent collection are juxtaposed with informative text on more than 30 featured artists including Francis Bacon, Leon Golub, Jasper Johns, Sol LeWitt, Bruce Nauman, Ad Reinhardt, Mark Rothko, Cindy Sherman and Andy Warhol. The sum of these parts is a fascinating volume that thoroughly examines the very idea of an art museum according to its corresponding ideal: presenting, interpreting and collecting the art of our time for a diverse audience.

First published in 1998 this volume explores the expanding wave of a new kind of museums of contemporary art in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Lorente examines their coming of age and the weight of their museological legacy arguing that the establishment of great national museums of art at London and Paris radiated out carrying their influence with it. This book emerged as part of a series on towns and cities and has a focus on London and Paris as centres of artistic innovation.
