Scandinavian Museums and Cultural Diversity Katherine Goodnow,Haci Akman,2008-09-01 Museums face the task of representing the similarities and differences that exist between groups such as national identities and indigenous and minority voices material and intangible heritage and current status and past history In order to achieve this aim a complex and not always easily compatible set of interests have to be taken into account from those of the museum itself to those of its main audiences sources of support and the groups that are or wish to be represented The approach taken by Scandinavian museums in response to this challenge highlights a very active concern for forms of cultural diversity and how they are interrelated By bringing together debates and discussions of diversity this volume offers insight into the Nordic region and its diverse peoples from the Sami and the Inuit to newer immigrants It presents a set of historical reviews on the formation of national museums and emerging and contested perceptions of national identity Furthering the general debate on representations of diversity and museums it also offers museum curators possible ways forward

Scandinavian Museums and Cultural Diversity Katherine J. Goodnow,Haci Akman,2008-09 Museums across the world are facing the task of capturing reflecting and representing the notion of complex identities personal religious and ethnic Narratives of national allegiances are being slowly replaced and supplemented by indigenous and minority voices providing a more complex understanding of diversity especially where intangible heritage is called on as a witness The approach taken by Scandinavian museums in response to this challenge highlights the hybrid forms of cultural diversity and how they interrelate and work together By bringing together debates and discussions of identity and diversity this volume offers a particular insight into a broad geographic region and its diverse people from the Sami and the limit to new migrants It also presents a set of historical views on the formation of national museums and their contested perceptions of identity Whilst developing new arguments and furthering an ongoing debate it offers museum curators possible ways forward
