Dear Mr Fox

I thank you very much for your question about the Mistletoe in your garden. The Mistletoe has male and female flowers on distinct plants. Evidently your plant is a male, as only the female plant can produce fruit trees. There is nothing to be done, therefore, with the plant you have - but you might perhaps secure a female plant by getting some berries when ripe, taking out the sticky seeds & measuring them on the surface of a branch of the Apple tree - Some of these things would, no doubt, prove to be female plants.

Yours faithfully
P. M. Venio
