 2. Non-transferable (location-bound) FSA's
 3. Location advantages
 4. Investment in – and value creation through – recombination
 5. Complementary resources of external actors

2. The first 3 concepts reflect the distinct resource base available to the firm, critical to achieving success in the marketplace
 - o This resource base has various components (owned or accessible to the firm)
 - Physical resources
 - Financial resources
 - Human resources
 - Upstream knowledge
 - Downstream knowledge (critical to the interface with customers)
 - Administrative (governance-related) knowledge
 - Reputational resources
 - o A firm can have FSA's (strengths relative to rival companies) in each of these resources
 - o The firm's particular location may contribute significantly to this distinct resource base, especially if this location provides privileged access to specific resources external to the firm itself
 - FSA's and location advantage can thus be intimately related
