Masada II:

Masada Revisited Arthur Ziffer, 2011-12-19 The play Masada Revisited is a semi fictionalized retelling in play form of an incident set in the locale of Masada a place near the Dead Sea in modern day Israel that occurred in 73 ce It refers to the last event of the Jewish War against the Romans that lasted from 66 ce to 70 ce with cleanup operations lasting until 73 ce Masada being the last one The only historical reference is from the book The Jewish War Against the Romans written by the historian Josephus who lived in the first century ce Josephus was not an eyewitness to the incident and was notoriously inaccurate sometimes as well as having to write under the constraint of ingratiating himself with his Roman sponsors Many Jewish people object to the original form of the story This version is hopefully less objectionable The book Judas the Galilean by Daniel Unterbrink published by iUniverse contains some background material that is referred to in the play Masada Revisited

The Texts from the Judaean Desert Martin G. Abegg, 2002 Composed at the end of the editorial process this volume provides a general overview of and introduction to the thirty eight volumes of the Discoveries in the Judaean Desert series published from 1951 onwards by Oxford University Press It contains a general description of the series and its editorial principles as well as different indexes several lists of the texts found in the Judaean desert a list of scribal notations annotated lists of internal overlaps and parallels the texts found in the Judaean desert arranged by their presumed dates and a concordance of the proper names

Voluntary Associations in the Graeco-Roman World John S. Kloppenborg, Stephen G. Wilson, 2002-09-11 Based upon a series of detailed case studies of associations such as early synagogues and churches philosophical schools and pagan mystery cults this collection addresses the question of what can legitimately be termed a voluntary association Employing modern sociological concepts the essays show how the various associations were constituted the extent of their membership why people joined them and what they contributed to the social fabric of urban life For many those groups were the most significant feature of social life beyond family and work All of them provided an outlet of religious as well as social commitments Also included are studies of the way in which early Jewish and Christian groups adopted and adapted the models of private association available to them and how this affected their social status and role Finally the situation of women is discussed as some of the voluntary associations offered them a more significant recognition than they received in society at large
