Berman, 2013-11-22 My first introduction to the eye came more than three decades ago when my close friend and mentor the late Professor Isaac C Michaelson convinced me that studying the biochemistry of ocular tissues would be a rewarding pursuit I hastened to explain that I knew nothing about the subject since relatively few basic biochemical studies on ocular tissues had appeared in the world literature Professor Michaelson assured me however that two books on eye biochemistry had already been written One of them a beautiful monograph by Arlington Krause 1934 of Johns Hopkins Hospital is well worth reading even today for its historical perspective The other published 22 years later was written by Antoinette Pirie and Ruth van Heyningen 1956 whose pioneering achievements in eye biochemistry at the Nuffield Laboratory of Ophthalmology in Oxford England are known throughout the eye research community and beyond To their credit are classical investigations on retinal corneal and lens biochemistry beginning in the 1940s and continuing for many decades thereafter Their important book written in 1956 on the Biochemistry of the Eye is a volume that stood out as a landmark in this field for many years In recent years however a spectacular amount of new information has been generated in ocular biochemistry Moreover there is increasing specialization among investigators in either a specific field of biochemistry or a particular ocular tissue

Functional Studies of Lens Fiber Cell Membrane Proteins Lisa Jane vonBehren Jarvis,1992 Studies on Lens Fiber Cell Gene Expression & Lens Differentiation Daryle Joseph DePianto,2002 The Organization of Mammalian Lens Fiber Cell Membrane Proteins Mark Lewis Arneson,1993 Current Aspects in Ophthalmology Asia Pacific Academy of Ophthalmology. Congress,Kōichi Shimizu,1992 The Asia Pacific Academy of Ophthalmology APAO holds a congress every two years It purports to discuss problems inherent in the Asia Pacific region as well as to publish latest achievements in the clinical and basic ophthalmology The XIII Congress was attended by 1106 delegates from 36 member countries Europe North America and other areas The program included a very wide range of subjects as well as a number of education sessions in the form of updates morning and luncheon seminars It is hoped that this publication of the proceedings of the congress published in two volumes will serve as rich resources of reference about the latest achievements and problems of eye care in this region and as a milestone in the long history of APAO

Oxford Textbook of Ophthalmology David L. Easty,John M. Sparrow,1999 Textbook of Ophthalmology: Lens and cataract Steven M. Podos,Myron Yanoff,1991 Concepts and Challenges in Retinal Biology H. Kolb,H. Ripps,Samuel Miao-sin Wu,S. Wu,2003-09-11 In August 2000 a Festschrift was held at the Marine Biological Laboratory Woods Hole Massachusetts to celebrate the career of Professor John E Dowling on the occasion of his 65th birthday Containing contributions from more than 50 of John's colleagues representing a Who's Who of the vision research community this work not only provides a memento of the occasion but will hopefully serve as a basic reference for future researchers in retinal biology The volume is divided somewhat arbitrarily into seven areas of retinal research containing chapters that present in some cases a broad overview of a particular topic and in others an account of current research and studies in progress These chapters exemplify the richness diversity and excitement of contemporary retinal research They also remind us of how much more needs to be done before we understand fully the interrelationship between retinal neurons the complex interactions between neurons and glial cells and the mechanisms that govern retinal development A final chapter contributed by John Dowling provides an overview of past accomplishments and offers some future perspectives on retinal research in the 21st century Physics, Uspekhi ,1997 Investigative Ophthalmology & Visual Science ,2000 Proceedings of Lasers in Ophthalmology ,1996 Topics in Electromagnetic Waves Jitendra Behari,2005 Conference papers Clinical Ophthalmology: Strabismus. Refraction. The lens ,1981 Lens Disorders Nicholas Phelps Brown,Anthony J. Bron,1996 Lens disorders and cataract in particular are the most common cause of reduced vision Much is now known about the cause nature and effects of cataract and this book sets out to describe in detail aspects of lens disorders and cataract The later chapters systematically describe all forms of cataract in morphological order allowing the reader to readily identify the nature of any particular cataract with which they are presented The book may thus be used as a clinical reference manual Photographs have been used extensively to illustrate and expand upon the text The authors who direct the Clinical Cataract Unit in Oxford have much experience in conditions of the lens and have the ability to convey their knowledge in an organised and fascinating style This book will be essential reading for all those with an interest in lens disorders particularly the clinical ophthalmologist but also the student optometrist and workers in the field Duane's Clinical Ophthalmology William Tasman,1994
