

Procedures Performed on Infants and Children

An OMS has considerable experience, training and skill to perform needed surgical procedures on children born with the following:

Tongue-tied or lip-tied: A frenectomy is a simple procedure performed by an OMS to loosen the frenum's connection and extend the range of motion.

The lingual frenum connects the tongue to the floor of the mouth and lower jaw. When movement of the tongue is restricted, this can be referred to as being "tongue-tied." Infants with this condition can have difficulty with nursing and, eventually, speaking. The labial frenum connects the upper and lower lips to the gum area near the front teeth. If they connect too close to the teeth, they can cause recessed lips and gum problems.

Cleft lip and palate occur when developing facial structures do not fuse completely, leaving a gap or space that can cause significant cosmetic and functional problems.

Cleft lip and palate are among the most common birth defects. Children can have one or both of these conditions, or both.

Cleft lip

Cleft lip can vary from patient to patient. It may just be a small notch in the lip. In others, it may continue up through the base of the nose.

Cleft palate

Cleft palate is a split in the roof of the mouth that may occur on one or both sides of the mouth and can go the full length of the palate.

Unilateral cleft lip and palate

Bilateral cleft lip and palate

Lip closure involves repositioning the skin, muscle, and other tissue in the lip into a more normal position to close the gap and improve function.
