Making a Mark Andrew Meirion Jones, Marta Díaz-Guardamino, 2019-03-31 The visual imagery of Neolithic Britain and Ireland is spectacular While the imagery of passage tombs such as Knowth and Newgrange are well known the rich imagery on decorated portable artefacts is less well understood How does the visual imagery found on decorated portable artefacts compare with other Neolithic imagery such as passage tomb art and rock art How do decorated portable artefacts relate chronologically to other examples of Neolithic imagery Using cutting edge digital imaging techniques the Making a Mark project examined Neolithic decorated portable artefacts of chalk stone bone antler and wood from three key regions southern England and East Anglia the Irish Sea region Wales the Isle of Man and eastern Ireland and Northeast Scotland and Orkney Digital analysis revealed for the first time the prevalence of practices of erasure and reworking amongst a host of decorated portable artefacts changing our understanding of these enigmatic artefacts Rather than mark making being a peripheral activity we can now appreciate the central importance of mark making to the formation of Neolithic communities across Britain and Ireland The volume visually documents and discusses the contexts of the decorated portable artefacts from each region discusses the significance and chronology of practices of erasure and reworking and compares these practices with those found in other Neolithic contexts such as passage tomb art rock art and pottery decoration A contribution from Antonia Thomas also discusses the settlement art and mortuary art of Orkney while Ian Dawson and Louisa Minkin contribute with a discussion of the collaborative fine art practices established during the project

NOMADISM IN ART THERAPY AND THE ACT OF MAKING A MARK: Towards a Creative-Relational Arts-Based Inquiry Mitra Reyhani Ghadim, 2026-02-19 This book centers on the concept of nomadism in art therapy not simply as a physical act but as a way of being a relational and philosophical stance that embraces fluidity non linearity and multiplicity The act of making a mark whether with paint gesture or presence becomes both a trace of this movement and a declaration of existence Nomadism in Art Therapy and the Act of Making a Mark offers a fresh perspective on the current epistemology of Creative Arts Therapy drawing on several recent developments in continental philosophy particularly the major conceptual ideas of Deleuze and Guattari as well as Deleuze's transcendental empiricism It strives to expand perceptions within art therapy relations beyond the limited spectrum of psychological theories The author aims to connect this contemporary philosophical approach to current therapeutic methods in ways that will enhance professionals understanding and application of creative relational arts based inquiries It is intended for all contemporary therapists and mental health professionals as well as current art therapy undergraduate and graduate students and art therapy graduates seeking to complete post graduate practice hours for licensure It will be a valuable resource for all contemporary minded mental health professionals and therapists who work
