Ocean Gardens and Palaces, Or, The Tent on the Beach Sidney Dyer, 1880 A Sea of Glass Drew Harvell, 2016-05-17

The author makes an eloquent plea for marine biodiversity conservation Library Journal Harvell seems to channel the devotion that motivated the Blaschkas The Guardian Winner of the 2016 National Outdoor Book Award Environment Category It started with a glass octopus Dusty broken and all but forgotten it caught Drew Harvell's eye Fashioned in intricate detail by the father-son glassmaking team of Leopold and Rudolf Blaschka the octopus belonged to a menagerie of unusual marine creatures that had been packed away for decades in a storage unit More than 150 years earlier the Blaschkas had been captivated by marine invertebrates and spun their likenesses into glass documenting the life of oceans untouched by climate change and human impacts Inspired by the Blaschkas' uncanny replicas Harvell set out in search of their living counterparts In A Sea of Glass she recounts this journey of a lifetime taking readers along as she dives beneath the ocean's surface to a rarely seen world revealing the surprising and unusual biology of some of the most ancient animals on the tree of life On the way we glimpse a century of change in our ocean ecosystems and learn which of the living matches for the Blaschkas' creations are indeed as fragile as glass Drew Harvell and the Blaschka menagerie are the subjects of the documentary Fragile Legacy which won the Best Short Film award at the 2015 Blue Ocean Film Festival Conservation Summit Learn more about the film and check out the trailer here The Ocean Tree J. C. Button, 2006 There is a legend that says that long ago in a great but forgotten civilization there was a tree that governed man The Ocean Tree consisted of seven branches including chaos order faith and good and evil Despite some branches being more powerful than others the tree allowed them all to speak in equal measure and they governed man with the most balanced of laws Harmony existed for a time until the branches were cut down and balance was lost As a great flood destroyed the ancient civilization the various branches were lost making a world of unchecked extremes Now in present day an archeologist and his teenage daughter Freya search the world for this ancient tree and the branches whilst pursued by murderous enemies Part of the legend says that one day a person will be born who has the power to unite all the branches once more and bring back harmony and balance to the world This person will be known as the Balanced One and will be the only person able to ride upon the branches and control their powers But the Balanced One's arrival will signify the start of the next apocalyptic flood that will destroy the world of man unless the branches are united Michael a teenager on holiday in Cornwall finds a mysterious and strange surfboard in his Grandfather's attic which is made from a wood like no other and that no one else can ride He soon discovers that this is much more than just a surfboard Soon his path will join with Freya and the two of them must embark on an epic journey around the world to find the lost branches of the ocean tree But whilst they battle against evil and danger at every turn the apocalypse is moving ever closer Silvics of Forest Trees of the United States H. A. Fowells, 1965 An Archaeology of the Cosmos Timothy R. Pauketat, 2013 An Archaeology of the Cosmos seeks answers to two fundamental questions of humanity and human history The first question concerns that which some use as a defining element of humanity religious beliefs Why do so many people believe in supreme beings and holy spirits The second question concerns changes in those beliefs What causes beliefs to change Using archaeological evidence gathered from ancient America especially case material from the Great Plains and the pre Columbian American Indian city of Cahokia Timothy Pauketat explores the logical consequences of these two fundamental questions Religious beliefs are not more resilient than other aspects of culture and society and people are not the only causes of historical change An Archaeology of the Cosmos examines the intimate association of agency and religion by studying how relationships between people places and things were bundled together and positioned in ways that constituted the fields of human experience This rethinking theories of agency and religion provides readers with challenging and thought provoking conclusions that will lead them to reassess the way they approach the past
