Practicing Community Class Culture And Power In An Urban Neighborhood:

Practicing Community Rhoda H. Halperin, 2015-01-28 Cincinnati's East End river community has been home to generations of working class people. This racially mixed community has roots that reach back as far as seven generations. But the community is vulnerable. Developers bulldoze raggedy but affordable housing to build upscale condos even as East Enders fight to preserve the community by participating in urban development planning controlled by powerful outsiders. This book portrays how East Enders practice the preservation of community. Drawing on more than six years of anthropological research and advocacy in the East End, Rhoda Halperin argues for redefining community not merely as a place but as a set of culturally embedded and class marked practices that give priority to caring for children and the elderly, procuring livelihood, and providing support for family, friends, and neighbors. These practices create the structures of community within the larger urban power structure. Halperin uses different genres to weave the voices of East Enders throughout the book. Poems and narratives offer poignant insights into the daily struggles against impersonal market forces that work against the struggle for livelihood. This firsthand account questions commonly held assumptions about working class people. In a fresh way, it reveals the cultural construction of marginality from the viewpoints of both real East Enders and the urban power structure.

Power at the Roots Miranda J. Martinez, 2010-09-25 Through direct engagement with gardeners, activists, and residents, Miranda Martinez shows the breadth and diversity of the community gardening movement and how these groups inserted themselves into local politics and development to create change. She demonstrates how real people are effective as social forces amid large scale urban change and looks at the complexities and contradictions involved in transformations of urban neighborhoods. One of the most important contributions of this study is its focus on the Puerto Ricans of the Lower East Side and their struggle to sustain its Latinidad. It goes deeply into the ethnic and cultural significance at the neighborhood and personal level to show the contradictory meanings of gentrification to Puerto Ricans and others and more importantly, the ways that the history and culture of Puerto Ricans are ignored, devalued, and erased. By going to the grassroots, this book vividly demonstrates how Puerto Ricans interact with the global and local trends involved in gentrification and how the struggles against displacement can alter the boundaries of the process.

Indigenous Communalism Carolyn Smith-Morris, 2019-10-18 Indigenous Communalism is a study of community building in Native communities and considers what models might be drawn from the strategies of Indigenous groups for post colonial communalism and native self determination in contemporary global society. Drawing on her ethnographic work among the Akimel O'odham and the Wiradjuri, Carolyn Smith-Morris shows how communal work and culture help these communities form distinctive indigenous bonds.

Whose School Is It? Rhoda H. Halperin, 2010-01-01 Whose School Is It? Women, Children, Memory, and Practice in the City is a success story with roadblocks, crashes, and detours. Rhoda Halperin uses feminist theorist and activist Gloria Anzaldúa's ideas about borderlands created by colliding cultures to deconstruct the creation and advancement of a public community charter school in a diverse long lived urban neighborhood on the Ohio River Class race and gender mix with age local knowledge and place authenticity to create a page turning story of grit humor and sheer stubbornness The school has grown and flourished in the face of daunting market forces class discrimination and an increasingly unfavorable national climate for charter schools Borderlands are tense spaces The school is a microcosm of the global city Many theoretical strands converge in this book feminist theory ideas about globalization class analysis and accessible narrative writing to present some new approaches in urban anthropology The book is multi voiced and nuanced in ways that provide authenticity and texture to the real circumstances of urban lives At the same time identities are threatened as community practices clash with rules and regulations imposed by outsiders Since it is based on fifteen years of ethnographic fieldwork in the community and the city Whose School Is It brings unique long term perspectives on continuities and disjunctures in cities Halperin s work as researcher and advocate also provides insider perspectives that are rare in the literature of urban anthropology
