Adults, Mathematics and Work John J. Keogh,Theresa Maguire,John O'Donoghue,2019-01-21 Adults use mathematics extensively in work even though they may deny it or dismiss their numerate behaviour as common sense Their capacity for mathematics is invisible to them and confirms their non maths person self perception which has negative consequences for their life choices In Adults Mathematics and Work the authors tackle and explain a number of paradoxes related to the curious relationship between adults and mathematics It operationalises the benefits of workplace doctoral research by providing a set of the tools to review this mistaken self perception in order to make workers abilities available for development It also provides a systematic way of uncovering and recognising informal and non formal learning to support employability and re employability in an increasingly fluid work landscape      Maths at Work Geoffrey Howson,1983      ...

The Teaching of Mathematics in the United Kingdom Great Britain. Board of Education,1911      Young Children at School in the Inner City Barbara Tizard,Peter Blatchford,Jessica Burke,Clare Farquhar,Ian Plewis,2017-04-28 First published in 1988 this work reports on a major British study of children s progress and behaviour in 33 infant schools The research looks at children from nursery through to junior school and asks why some children had higher attainments and made more progress than others Using observations not only in schools but also interviews with children and parents the children s skills on entering school were found to have an important effect on progress In each school black and white children and girls and boys were studied in order gauge whether gender or ethnicity were related to progress      Noncognitive psychological processes and academic achievement Jihyun Lee,Lazar Stankov,2017-10-02 It is becoming increasingly clear that non cognitive psychological processes are important for students school achievement even to the point where their influence may be stronger than that exerted by the parents teachers or the school atmosphere itself Non cognitive psychological variables refer to varieties of self beliefs and goal orientations such as anxiety confidence self efficacy and self concept which are often seen as dispositional and motivational in nature It is particularly important to highlight the role that confidence and self efficacy play in school achievement as these two self beliefs are related to metacognitive processing the awareness of what you know and what you do not know Self concept meanwhile tends to exert its influence on an individual s choice of tertiary level courses This book suggests that by focusing on students self beliefs the education system may be in a position to improve cognitive performance since individual students self beliefs may be more malleable than the cognitive processes involved in acquiring academic knowledge Focusing on these non cognitive psychological processes is also likely to be more effective in improving performance than system wide interventions involving changes in policy for both public and private sector educators This book will be useful to educational researchers school leaders administrators counsellors and teachers in guiding students attitudes towards learning and school performance It will also provide students in psychology and education with broad and nuanced insights into the drivers of school achievement This book was originally published as a special issue of Educational Psychology Authentic Problem Solving and Learning in the 21st Century Young Hoan Cho, Imelda S.
