The Schoolmasters Yearbook and Directory, 1908. My Schools and Schoolmasters Or the Story of My Education. Hugh Miller, 2018-08-14. My Schools and Schoolmasters or The Story of my Education by Hugh Miller. Rather more than eighty years ago a stout little boy in his sixth or seventh year was despatched from an old fashioned farm house in the upper part of the parish of Cromarty to drown a litter of puppies in an adjacent pond. The commission seemed to be not in the least congenial. He sat down beside the pool and began to cry over his charge and finally after wasting much time in a paroxysm of indecision and sorrow instead of committing the puppies to the water he tucked them up in his little kilt and set out by a blind pathway which went winding through the stunted heath of the dreary Maolbuoy Common in a direction opposite to that of the farm house his home for the two previous twelvemonths. After some doubtful wandering on the waste he succeeded in reaching before nightfall the neighbouring seaport town and presented himself laden with his charge at his mother's door. The poor woman a sailor's widow in very humble circumstances raised her hands in astonishment. Oh my unlucky boy she exclaimed what's this what brings you here. The little doggies mither said the boy I couldna drown the little doggies and I took them to you. What afterwards befell the little doggies I know not but trivial as the incident may seem it exercised a marked influence on the circumstances and destiny of at least two generations of creatures higher in the scale than themselves. The boy as he stubbornly refused to return to the farm house had to be sent on shipboard agreeably to his wish as a cabin boy and the writer of these chapters was born in consequence a sailor's son and was rendered as early as his fifth year mainly dependent for his support on the sedulously plied but indifferently remunerated labours of his only surviving parent at the time a sailor's widow.
