Performing Female Blackness Naila Keleta-Mae, 2023-06-20 Performing Female Blackness examines race gender and nation in Black life using critical race feminist and performance studies methodologies This book examines what private and public performances of female blackness reveal about race gender and nation and considers how the land widely known as Canada shapes these performances By exploring Black expressive culture in familial literary and performance settings Naila Keleta Mae theorizes that perpetual performance forces people who are read as female and Black to always be figuratively on stage regardless of cultural political or historical contexts Written in poetry prose and journal form and drawing from the author's own life and artistic works Performing Female Blackness is ideal not only for scholars educators and students of the humanities social sciences and fine arts but also for artists and the general public too

We Pursue Our Magic Marina Magloire, 2023-08-29 Drawing on the collected archives of distinguished twentieth century Black woman writers such as Lucille Clifton Audre Lorde Toni Cade Bambara Lorraine Hansberry and others Marina Magloire traces a new history of Black feminist thought in relation to Afro diasporic religion Beginning in the 1930s with the pathbreaking ethnographic work of Katherine Dunham and Zora Neale Hurston in Haiti and ending with the present day popularity of Afro diasporic spiritual practices among Black women she offers an alternative genealogy of Black feminism characterized by its desire to reconnect with ancestrally centered religions like Vodou Magloire reveals the tension discomfort and doubt at the heart of each woman's efforts to connect with ancestral spiritual practices These revered writers are often regarded as unchanging monuments to Black womanhood but Magloire argues that their feminism is rooted less in self empowerment than in a fluid pursuit of community despite the inevitable conflicts wrought by racial capitalism The subjects of this book all model a nuanced Black feminist praxis grounded in the difficult work of community building between Black women across barriers of class culture and time

Let Spirit Speak! Vanessa K. Valdés, 2012-05-30 In this unique and groundbreaking collection writers critics historians and poets celebrate the cultural contributions of members of the African diaspora in the Western Hemisphere Beginning with the cries and prayers of Gina Athena Ulysse to the Haitian loa Erzulie in the aftermath of the earthquake in Haiti each writer in the collection engages in the recovering of the past highlighting that which has been buried in the history of time The contributors look at a wide range of artistic productions from poetry and fiction to art music and film and martial arts produced in Cuba Columbia Brazil Haiti and the United States Haitian Creole Spanish and English are brought together giving the reader a vivid sense of the multiplicity of voices in the African diaspora Rather than concentrate on the dispersion of peoples of African descent this collection focuses instead on the multiple sites of origins in the Americas as diasporic legacies are found throughout the continent

Black Authors James Edward Newby, 1991 Turning Points and Transformations Christine DeVine, 2011-07-12 From the Irish Cailleach and other shape shifters of folk legends to modern movie transformers from Ovid's Metamorphoses to the moment when Gregor Samsa woke up one morning to find himself transformed into an insect in Kafka's novella from conversion narratives to slave narratives turning points and transformations have always been central to literary works and to cultural developments In fact with Freytag's pyramid in mind one could claim that all literary works focus on the trope of a transformation born of a turning point because such moments comprise the very essence and vitality of human life and culture But why are turning points necessarily transformational and in what way And what brings about those turning points in language literature culture and human lives These are essentially the questions the essays in this volume seek to answer The contributors examine turning points and transformations personal literary and cultural brought about through the randomness of the universe as well as through human interference and discuss ways in which humans in general and writers in particular through their art experience and cope with the ineluctable results
