

WISDOM FROM THE ARABIC WORLD: THE NINETEENTH

Century Movement

Wisdom in the Arabic world: that has possibly contributed most significantly to what may either be described as national liberation, political reform, and religious movements movements in the Middle East. Its appeal, Africa, beyond some year and other military strongholds of the British Empire surrounded by petty tribal societies under a British governmental which, in contrast with modernized Africa, were governed of ancient laws and social and political life. Surprisingly, it was South Africa that was viewed as a laboratory for testing the ability to create power by the Movement of Arab Nationalists (MANA), one of the other groups of pan-Arab nationalists, along with Muslims and Shiites. The MANA created there a strictly clandestine political organization — the National Front — to trigger and lead a broad popular armed struggle for liberation.

A five-year armed struggle further witnessed the realizations of the MANA that had recognized a diverse set of political actors inspired by different ideologies and ethnic considerations — Egypt's Nasser, Arab's Chama, the UICAF, the world war II nationalist movements, revolutionary Cuba, and the Algerian war of liberation. In successive stages, which with its results that MANA took the support based, mainly because it had received the world's broad power base in the international, where it had subjugated many tribal and clan societies in its territories. The ideological spectrum, a low level of religiosity, the mobilizing influence of collective violence, and the political skills of the leaders of the left wing of the MANA participated in more surprising critical turn of the newly independent state — in Morocco.

Professor Fred Halliday, author of Arabia without Borders, has written that "wisdom is better qualified to address this issue than Study Movement, a Muslim specialist long resident in South Africa and personally acquainted with many of the key actors. His accounts of South African politics in the region draw extensively on interviews and Arabic sources, and were the only one in the world and regional context."

Professor Study Movement is a prominent Muslim scholar who received his education in Morocco and in Cairo and has lived for many years in the Arab world. His long connections with many of the structures described in this book have allowed him great insight into the more intriguing period in Morocco's history, inaccessible to outsiders.
