1. Introduction: The True Cost of Delinquency

Every unpaid unit in your facility represents more than just missed revenue.

Delinquency creates a cascade of costs that impact your entire operation:

Direct Revenue Loss: The average self-storage unit generates $74.57 per month nationally (as of 2023 figures). When delinquency rates climb even 1%, that translates to thousands in lost revenue for mid-sized operators.

Operational Inefficiency: Staff spend 2-9 hours per month per property managing delinquent accounts—time that could be dedicated to customer acquisition and service.

Legal Exposure: Mishandling lien notices can result in lawsuits, with settlements that can potentially exceed $10,000 per case, not including legal fees.

Opportunity Cost: Delinquent units remain occupied but unprofitable, preventing you from renting the space to paying customers.

The bottom line?

A 5% delinquency rate on a 500-unit facility costs approximately $34,353 annually in direct revenue alone—before accounting for staff time and legal risk.
