

*I love recipes - a book club where members don't include food. Every time the subject is discussed, every one cooking ahead, they cook, eat and talk about books, their own preferences. In Plan of Plan there's a column book-clubbers have put their passion for food and reading together to create a collection of inspiring recipes and literary information that will prove both useful and delightful to those who belong to book clubs and others who cook their food.*

— Pam Greenblatt, Ballston Cooking School member, cookbook author, food writer and oral reader

*What a clever idea. Feed the body, feed the soul — Marlene Mackenzie guiding me, Ann Marie MacDonell, me, as collaborators with Shirley Dwyer — and have a whole lot of fun doing both. Plan of Plan is a heavenly mixed gourmet recipe for good eating, great reading and great times.*

— Joni K. Korman, Jeanne White, Ontario Library

Plan of Plan is guaranteed to have you craving seconds and thirds. It is a feast for those of book club and great recipes, a fun book that has all the requirements of the top best in publishing: it's great company; it's fulfilling, satisfying, delicious, challenging and best of all, requires no scrubbing or sweeping, only gentle page turning, at the end of each new chapter.

— *Rita MacGregor, National Post columnist and author of *Angry: In Search of the Natural Food of Canada

Plan of Plan is a unique and fun book that will become a "must have" for every book club in the country. Anyone who loves good books to feed the mind loves good food to feed the tummy. This book offers tips on organizing the club and provides hours with countless easy-to-prepare recipes as well as recipes for the more adventurous cooks.
