

Prehistoric clothing

There are no exact certainties as to when the human being started wearing clothes. The anthropologists estimate that it started about 100,000 and 500,000 years ago. The first garments were made of skins and animal leather, herbs and bones, or bones and shells. This is why there are very scarce remains of them which were preserved. Simple needles made of bone are evidence that leather clothes were seen at least 30,000 years ago.

Looking for warming

About 100,000 years ago, the climate in the middle east was too hot to wear clothes to face the very low temperatures of the glaciers. They learned to use leather and also were the pioneers in the use of some kind of clothing. The man of Cro-Magnon, the direct predecessor of modern humans 30,000 years ago, started using bone elements to manufacture some clothes, more elaborated throughout time. He created the needles and sewing garments, with which he covered the entire body. He also was advanced from wear through the incorporation of the silk and it discovered the fibres with which he weaved the first fabrics.

Garment fabrics

The prehistoric man developed different methods to treat animal hides, a process known as tanning, creating a skin able to resist the harsh cold in different environments. Later, animal hair was used to make garments. Progression of skin got to various processes for its preservation and, also, its decoration.

Prehistoric garments
Prehistoric garments were made mainly with animal skins, mostly of deer and that were decorated.

Between skins and leather

During the Neolithic era, between the 10,000 and 8,000 BC, the weather started changing and becoming less cold. The human kept wearing clothes of animal leather and skins, although less rudimentary than that of its predecessors, thanks to the fact that tools had reached a significant development.

Extreme resistance
Some clothes of about 10,000 years ago were made of animal skins with their hair removed and sewed with flax.

Long and clothes
The clothing was probably derived from that which appeared four or five 10,000 years ago, with the woolly mammoth. But the human being already used leather hair.

Woolen hair
Wool of sheep and sometimes goat wool as the dog, in order to provide the a protection for the animal hair.

Spine to hand
A refinement of the bone was generated throughout time. Along and needles were being created.

Decorative
Human and Neolithic man developed different methods to treat animal skins, a process known as tanning, creating a skin able to resist the harsh cold in different environments.
