The Bloomsbury Companion to Language Industry Studies Erik Angelone, Maureen Ehrensberger-Dow, Gary Massey, 2019-11-14 This volume provides a comprehensive overview of the key issues shaping the language industry including translation interpreting machine translation editing terminology management technology and accessibility By exploring current and future research topics and methods the Companion addresses language industry stakeholders researchers trainers and working professionals who are keen to know more about the dynamics of the language industry Providing systematic coverage of a diverse range of translation and interpreting related topics and featuring an A to Z of key terms The Bloomsbury Companion to Language Industry Studies examines how industry trends and technological advancement can optimize best practices in multilingual communication language industry workspaces and training

Training for the New Millennium Martha Tennent, 2005-01-01 Originating at an international forum held at the University of Vic Spain the twelve essays collected here attest to important changes in translation practice and the assumptions which underpin them Leading theorists respond to the state of Translation Studies today particularly the epistemological dilemma between theories that are empirically oriented and those that are inspired by developments in Cultural Studies But the volume is also practical Experienced instructors survey existing pedagogies at translator interpreter training programs and explore new techniques that address the technological and global challenges of the new millennium Among the topics considered are how to use translation technology in the classroom how to construct a syllabus for a course in audiovisual translating or in translation theory and how to develop guidelines for a program for community interpreters or conference interpreters The contributors all assume that translation whether written or oral does not occupy a neutral space It is a cross cultural exchange that produces far reaching social effects Their essays significantly advance the theoretical and practical understanding of translation along these lines

Describing Cognitive Processes in Translation Maureen Ehrensberger-Dow, Birgitta Englund Dimitrova, Séverine Hubscher-Davidson, Ulf Norberg, 2015-09-15 This volume addresses translation as an act and an event having as its main focus the cognitive and mental processes of the translating or interpreting individual in the act of translating while opening up wider perspectives by including the social situation in explorations of the translation process First published as a special issue of Translation and Interpreting Studies issue 8 2 2013 the chapters in this volume deal with various aspects of translators and interpreters observable and non observable processes thus encouraging further research at the interface of cognitive and sociological approaches in this area In terms of those distinctions the chapters can be characterized as studies of the actual cognitive translation acts of other processes related to the translation acts or of processes that are related to the sociological translation event

Metalanguages for Dissecting Translation Processes Rei Miyata, Masaru Yamada, Kyo Kageura, 2022-07-04 This edited volume covers the development and application of metalanguages for concretely describing and communicating translation processes in practice In a modern setting of project based translation it is crucial to bridge the gaps between various actors involved in the translation process especially among clients translation service providers TSPs translators and technology developers However we have been confronted with the lack of common understanding among them about the notion and detailed mechanisms of translation Against this backdrop we are developing systematic fine grained metalanguages that are designed to describe and analyse translation processes in concrete terms Underpinned by the rich accumulation of theoretical findings in translation studies and established standards of practical translation services such as ISO 17100 our metalanguages extensively cover the core processes in translation projects namely project management source document analysis translation and revision Gathering authors with diverse backgrounds and expertise this book proffers the fruits of the contributors collaborative endeavour it not only provides practicable metalanguages but also reports on wide ranging case studies on the application of metalanguages in practical and pedagogical scenarios This book supplies concrete guidance for those who are involved in the translation practices and translation training education In addition to being of practical use the metalanguages reflect explication of the translation process As such this book provides essential insights for researchers and students in the field of translation studies The up to date versions of the metalanguages related materials and the corrigendum for the book content are available on our project website <https://tntc-project.github.io>

The Handbook of Translation and Cognition John W. Schwieter, Li Wei, 2020-01-09 The Handbook of Translation and Cognition is a pioneering state of the art investigation of cognitive approaches to translation and interpreting studies TIS Offers timely and cutting edge coverage of the most important theoretical frameworks and methodological innovations Contains original contributions from a global group of leading researchers from 18 countries Explores topics related to translator and workplace characteristics including machine translation creativity ergonomic perspectives and cognitive effort and competence training and interpreting such as multimodal processing neurocognitive optimization process oriented pedagogies and conceptual change Maps out future directions for cognition and translation studies as well as areas in need of more research within this dynamic field

Translation and Cognition Gregory M. Shreve, Erik Angelone, 2010 Translation and Cognition assesses the state of the art in cognitive translation and interpreting studies by examining three important trends methodological innovation the evolution of research design and the continuing integration of translation process research results with the core findings of the cognitive sciences Several of the volume's essays focus on fruitful new process research methods such as eye tracking and keystroke logging that have arisen to supplement the use of think aloud protocols Another set of contributions investigates how some central theories concepts and methods from our sister disciplines of psycholinguistics cognitive psychology and neuroscience can inform our understanding of translation processes and their development in novices and experts Yet another set of essays argues that methodological innovation and integration with the cognitive sciences can lead to more robust research designs and theoretical frameworks to explain the intricacies of cognitive processing during translation and interpreting Thus this timely volume actively demonstrates that a new theoretical and methodological consensus in cognitive translation studies is emerging promising to greatly improve the quality verifiability and generalizability of translation process research

Innovation and Expansion in Translation Process Research Isabel Lacruz, Riitta Jääskeläinen, 2018 Cognitive research in translation and interpreting has reached a critical threshold of maturity that is triggering rapid expansion along exciting new paths that potentially lead to deeper connections with other disciplines Innovation and Expansion in Translation Process Research reflects this broadening scope and reach emphasizing ongoing methodological innovations diversification of research topics and questions and rich interactions with adjacent fields of research The contributions to the volume can be grouped within four loosely defined themes advances in traditional topics in translation process research including problems in translation translation competence or expertise and specialization of translators advances in research into the emotional or affective aspects of translating and translator training innovations in machine translation and post editing expansion of cognitively oriented translation studies to include editing processes and reception studies This timely volume highlights the burgeoning growth diversification and connectivity of translation process research

Cognitive Processes in Translation and Interpreting Joseph H. Danks, 1997-03-20 With the accelerating emergence of global markets comes a demand for high quality translation and interpretation at all levels of business government and academia and therefore highly developed cognitive skills in two languages The interdisciplinary contributions in this authoritative volume provide a strong foundation for improvement in these skills The authors apply concepts and methods of cognitive science to translation focusing on the relationship between translation theory research and practice

Literature in Translation Carol Maier, Françoise Massardier-Kenney, 2010 In the last several decades literary works from around the world have made their way onto the reading lists of American university and college courses in an increasingly wide variety of disciplines This is a cause for rejoicing Through works in translation students in our mostly monolingual society are at last becoming acquainted with the multilingual and multicultural world in which they will live and work Many instructors have expanded their reach to teach texts that originate from across the globe Unfortunately literature in English translation is frequently taught as if it had been written in English and students are not made familiar with the cultural linguistic and literary context in which that literature was produced As a result they submit what they read to their own cultural expectations they do not read in translation and do not reap the benefits of intercultural communication Here a true challenge arises for an instructor Books in translation seldom contain introductory information about the mediation that translation implies or the stakes involved in the transfer of cultural information Instructors are often left to find their own material about the author or the culture of the source text Lacking the appropriate pedagogical tools they struggle to provide information about either the original work or about translation itself and they might feel uneasy about teaching material for which they lack adequate preparation Consequently they restrict themselves to well known works in translation or works from other countries originally written in English

Literature in Translation Teaching Issues and Reading Practices squarely addresses this pedagogical lack The book's sixteen essays provide for instructors a context in which to teach works from a variety of languages and cultures in ways that highlight the effects of linguistic and cultural transfers

The Geography of Translation and Interpretation Rainer Schulte, 2001 This study introduces the reader to the complex problems translators face It also shows how methods derived from the theory and practice of translation can be used to revitalize the interpretation of literary and humanistic texts One of the major tools to achieve a thorough reading of a text is the use of multiple translations The chapter on the discussion of multiple translations is the first of its kind to study the nature of interpretive perspectives

Translation Review, 1995

Toward a Translation Criticism Antoine Berman, 2009 Françoise Massardier Kenney's translation of Antoine Berman's Toward a Translation Criticism makes available for the first time in the English speaking world one of the twentieth century's foundational texts in translation studies Berman's book published posthumously in France develops an original concept of criticism of translation and a methodology to anchor the practice of this criticism He demonstrates how the work of translation is a critical process as well as a creative one Moving away from nonsystematic evaluative approaches that focus on the shortcomings of translations or the normative approaches that study the cultural and literary systems into which the translations are inserted Berman applies the notion of ethics he developed in his earlier works calling for a translation that is nonethnocentric and stipulating that the creativity required by translation be focused on the re creation of the original in the other language without being over determined by the personal poetics of the writer translator Berman achieves a rare combination of hermeneutic and stylistic analysis of commentary on the original and analysis of its translations giving the reader access both to the language of the original to the way in which poetry and thought are deployed and to the actual work of translation Toward a Translation Criticism is divided into two separate but interlinked parts each focused on one element of the ethics of translation theory reflection and practice experience In the first part Berman presents what he calls a general productive criticism while in the second part he applies the general theoretical principles of this criticism to the analysis of the translations of John Donne s work into French and Spanish The translation of Berman s text is accompanied by an introduction placing Berman s thought in its intellectual context and by supplementary notes that complete the bibliographic material presented in the French language version This study is essential reading for translation studies scholars readers interested in the creative literary process in the nature of literary criticism and in the philosophy of language It will also be of interest to John Donne specialists Bibliography of Translation Studies ,1998
