Therapeutic Community for Women Prisoners Elaine Player, Elaine Genders, 2025-09-02

Based upon an extensive empirical study of a democratic therapeutic community for women serving long and medium sentences this book explores the opportunities it provided for restorative rehabilitation In so doing it identifies some of the interconnected ways in which these ambitions are undermined by pervasive yet often tacit assumptions that underly penal policies and practices Drawing on a wealth of data gathered from a study spanning a period of eighteen years at the only democratic therapeutic community for women prisoners in the UK the book highlights how feminist criminology has revealed an invidious history of women s treatment in prison demonstrating how reformist and rehabilitative interventions have reproduced and exacerbated existing states of inequality and oppression Consequently the question explored in this book is whether a proportionate sentence that imposes a loss of liberty is inevitably destined to this fate or whether it can be constructed in ways that are progressive and transformative By identifying and understanding some of the interconnected ways in which progressive efforts have typically been undermined it opens a debate about the insinuation of certain often unspoken assumptions that underly penal policies and practices and the need for their deconstruction It opens an axiomatic debate about how women imprisoned for serious offences might have that loss of liberty interpreted to facilitate a restorative reparative and reintegrative process of rehabilitation informed by principles of social justice This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of criminology feminist studies public policy and human rights It will also be of value to policymakers and practitioners in women s prisons and psychologists and psychiatrists interested in therapeutic communities

Pathway to Purpose Kathrine Giske, 1999 Learning together: Experimental evidence on the impact of group-based nutrition interventions in rural Bihar Raghunathan, Kalyani, Kumar, Neha, Gupta, Shivani, Chauhan, Tarana, Kathuria, Ashi Kohli, Menon, Purnima, 2020-06-16 Despite improvements over the last decade or more India still accounts for a large proportion of the global prevalence of maternal and child undernutrition We use a cluster randomized controlled design and two waves of panel data on more than 2000 households from Bihar to analyse the impact on diet quality and anthropometry of a health and nutrition intervention delivered through an at scale women s self help group SHGs platform We find that the intervention had small but significant impacts on women and children s dietary diversity with the main impacts coming from an increase in the consumption of fruits and vegetables and dairy however it had no impact on women's body mass index We identify several potential pathways to impact To the extent that SHGs can effect broad based social change their current reach to millions of women makes them a powerful platform for accelerating improvements in maternal and child health and nutrition outcomes
