More Bread Or Ill Appear:

More Bread Or I'll Appear Emer Martin, 2000 In a young brash hip new voice that combines irony and nervous tenderness with a bold and provocative appeal Emer Martin introduces us to an Irish family unlike any other With her father institutionalized and her brother s uncanny string of near death misses it s left to 28 year old Keelin to find her oldest sister Aisling who has been missing from her family for fifteen years Keelin travels to the bars of New York s East Village and the neon forest of Tokyo s underbelly falling into and out of the lives of her colorful troubled expatriate siblings All the while Aisling out ahead dares Keelin to find her and bring her back home Moving at high speed and wickedly funny More Bread or I ll Appear takes us deep into a world where the boundaries between family members can be greater than the borders between countries

More Bread Or I'll Appear ,1999-02-23 Ireland and Transatlantic Poetics Brian Caraher, Robert Mahony, 2007 Transatlantic poetics is the principal theme and the constructive burden of these essays The motive toward its articulation lies in the demand for cross national international and post nationalist comprehension of cultural relations and critical practices across modern Anglophone British Irish and North American literary developments literary filiations and literary history Anglophone literary study needs to articulate ever more clearly the poetics of literary practices including the cultural politics of literary histories and literary reading Ireland is a small island yet its finest writers have insistently articulated its modern culture within a transatlantic neighborhood stretching from continental Europe across the British and Irish archipelago to the western reaches of North America Modern Dublin is a cultural location for constructing transatlantic literary relations and poetics This collection foregrounds modern Dublin its writers its universities its literary journals its teachers and critics of English Studies as well as the contested critical construction of regional and international poetics and cultural politics that emerges from the often tense interaction of local and global literary practices and critical desires
