The Failed Promise of the American High School, 1890-1995 David L. Angus,Jeffrey Mirel,1999 This provocative new study of the American high school examines the historical debates about curriculum policy and also traces changes in the institution itself as evidenced by what students actually studied Contrary to conventional accounts the authors argue that beginning in the 1930s American high schools shifted from institutions primarily concerned with academic and vocational education to institutions mainly focused on custodial care of adolescents Claiming that these changes reflected educators racial class and gender biases the authors offer original suggestions for policy adjustments that may lead to greater educational equality for our ever growing and ever more diverse population of students
