The Politics of the Developing Areas Gabriel Abraham Almond, James Smoot Coleman, 2015-03-08 A pioneering venture this book is the first major effort toward a valid comparison of the political systems of Asia Africa the Near East and Latin America After establishing a theoretical framework based on a functional approach to comparative politics the authors apply their scheme to Southeast Asia Lucian W Pye South Asia Myron Weiner SubSaharan Africa James S Coleman the Near East Dankwart Rustow and Latin America George I Blanksten In each area they survey the political background the nature and function of political governmental and authoritative structures the processes of change and means of political integration The contributors have performed an extraordinarily difficult feat of classification description synthesis and analysis in what promises to be a book of seminal importance in comparative politics Originally published in 1960 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Bioeconomics of Fisheries Management Lee G. Anderson, Juan Carlos Seijo, 2011-11-18 Fisheries Economics has always been an interdisciplinary field of study with economic analysis based on stock population dynamics but many published works have focused mainly on theoretical economic issues without much focus on biological details For the most part age structured models have been ignored Bioeconomics of Fisheries Management is a valuable reference text that presents the economic aspects of fisheries management in a broad bioeconomic framework The book is broken into two parts Part I covers the traditional areas of fisheries economics covering topics such as open access optimal and managed fisheries utilization that is analyzed through a traditional one stock one fleet model It also presents the basic results in terms of an age structured model Part II covers material related to more recent work on bioeconomic models when more rigorous biological components became more prevalent and views fisheries management with an ecosystems based approach Accompanying the book is a user friendly CD with exercises and examples that aids the reader in applying theoretical principles of population dynamics and fisheries management and regulation Bioeconomics of Fisheries Management will be a valuable text for researchers fisheries economists professionals and students alike Politics and Change in Developing Countries Colin Leys,2011-02-03 This 1969 work gathers together essays on Third World development by nine social scientists with diverse academic interests These contributions are united by a relative uncertainty in relation to development derived from the contemporary critical reappraisal of the area together with a need to create fresh methodologies for the advancement of their respective fields Recruiting Civil Servants Efficiently Great Britain. National Audit Office,2009 In 2007 08 central government recruited more than 40 000 new staff with 78 per cent for positions at junior grades The NAO s analysis of how six organisations recruit identifies three common issues the costs of staff used in the recruitment process are too high the length of the recruitment process is too long and the quality of the recruitment process needs to be improved There is no centrally held data on the cost of central government recruitment programmes but the NAO has found the internal staff costs of recruiting an individual vary from 556 to 1 921 per position There is the potential to reduce these costs by up to 68 per cent which could deliver savings in internal staff costs across government of up to 35 million a year without compromising the quality of the candidates appointed It can typically take 16 weeks to recruit a new member of staff Time could be saved by better anticipating recruitment demands using resources more effectively and where possible standardising the process There is little evidence that central government organisations systematically test the quality or effectiveness of their recruitment process Information on turnover of staff or surveys of candidates and managers are not routinely used to identify the successes and failings of the recruitment process The report identifies a range of possible ways of improving external recruitment ranging from better workforce planning and the standardisation of advertisements and job descriptions to tailoring the amount of resource used in recruitment to the type of vacancy and sifting out unsuitable candidates at a much earlier stage in the process Ecology Robert E.
