Chartist drama Gregory Vargo,2020-06-10 The first collection of its kind Chartist Drama makes available four plays written or performed by members of the Chartist movement of the 1840s Emerging from the lively counter culture of this protest campaign for democratic rights these plays challenged cultural as well as political hierarchies by adapting such recognisable genres as melodrama history plays and tragedy for performance in radically new settings They include poet activist John Watkins s John Frost which dramatises the gripping events of the Newport rising in which twenty two Chartists lost their lives in what was probably a misfired attempt to spark a nationwide rebellion Gregory Vargo s introduction and notes elucidate the previously unexplored world of Chartist dramatic culture a context that promises to reshape what we know about early Victorian popular politics and theatre

Soul on Fire James Quinn,2002 Thomas Russell the United Irishman and close friend of Wolfe Tone had an eventful and varied life He fought in India as an armed officer was a journalist with the radical Northern Star librarian with the Linen Hall Library and one of the most important radical political activists of the 1790s Russell played a key role in the founding of the United

Irishmen and in transforming the constitutional society into a revolutionary conspiracy He is also accepted as the most socially radical of all the United Irish leaders and was a fervent opponent of the slave trade and industrial exploitation He was seen by the government as perhaps the most dangerous of the United Irishmen and as a result he spent six years in prison without a trial He emerged from prison in 1802 still intent on revolt and is unique in being the only founder of the United Irishmen to participate in the society's last stand the Emmet revolt of 1803 To assist Emmet's efforts in Dublin he attempted to raise Ulster but failed and was hanged in Downpatrick There was however much more to his life than politics He participated fully in the intellectual ferment of the late eighteenth century and had wide ranging interests in philosophy politics science literature and Gaelic culture On a personal level he was a fascinating man his dark striking looks and engaging personality winning him the admiration of both men and women Yet he was an enigmatic and tortured soul his heavy drinking and sexual promiscuity sitting uneasily with his deeply held Christian beliefs Born a Protestant he was a deeply religious man sympathetic to all forms of Christianity and his religious views most notably his belief in the advent of a Christian utopia or millennium offer the key to understanding his life
