Planning In Postmodern Times:

Planning in Postmodern Times Philip Allmendinger, 2002-01-04 Postmodern social theory has provided significant insights into our understanding of society and its components Key thinkers including Foucault Baudrillard and Lyotard have challenged existing ideas about power and rationality in society This book analyses planning from a postmodern perspective and explores alternative conceptions based on a combination of postmodern thinking and other fields of social theory In doing so it exposes some of the limits of postmodern social theory while providing an alternative conception of planning in the twenty first century This title will appeal to anyone interested in how we think and act in relation to cities urban planning and governance

Planning Futures Philip Allmendinger, Mark Tewdwr-Jones, 2005-06-29 This book is an up to date reader on planning theory By drawing upon examples from planning practice and case study scenarios the authors ensure that the work discusses planning theory within the context of present planning practice

The Reluctant Architecture of European Power Sebastiano Fabbrini, 2025-06-16 The EU is a unique experiment in shared governance This book addresses this process from the prism of architecture a discipline that has had close ties with power throughout history By examining several substantial architectural productions developed by the EU since the 1950s this book asks a question that has so far been unexplored why is it so difficult for the EU to engage with architecture This book theorizes a form of reluctance towards architecture and identifies its underlying causes addressing the tension between the national and the supranational the historical bond between architecture and the state the shortage of acceptable images of Europe the functionalist culture of the European institutions as well as the legal constraints that have limited their operations in the built environment First book on the architecture of the EU institutions Most comprehensive explanation of why the EU is reluctant to engage with architecture Interdisciplinary book which is of interest to scholars of architecture and European studies alike

Food Trucks, Cultural Identity, and Social Justice Julian Agyeman, Caitlin Matthews, Hannah Sobel, 2017-09-08 Aspects of the urban food truck phenomenon including community economic development regulatory issues and clashes between ethnic authenticity and local sustainability The food truck on the corner could be a brightly painted old style lonchera offering tacos or an upscale mobile vendor serving lobster rolls Customers range from gastro tourists to construction workers all eager for food that is delicious authentic and relatively inexpensive Although some cities that host food trucks encourage their proliferation others throw up regulatory roadblocks This book examines the food truck phenomenon in North American cities from Los Angeles to Montreal taking a novel perspective social justice It considers the motivating factors behind a city s promotion or restriction of mobile food vending and how these motivations might connect to or impede broad goals of social justice The contributors investigate the discriminatory implementation of rules with gentrified hipsters often receiving preferential treatment over traditional immigrants food trucks as part of community economic development and food trucks role in cultural identity formation They describe among other things mobile food vending in Portland Oregon where relaxed permitting encourages street food the criminalization of food trucks by Los Angeles and New York City health codes food as cultural currency in Montreal social and spatial bifurcation of food trucks in Chicago and Durham North Carolina and food trucks as a part of Vancouver Canada s self branding as the Greenest City Contributors Julian Agyeman Sean Basinski Jennifer Clark Ana Croegaert Kathleen Dunn Renia Ehrenfeucht Emma French Matthew Gebhardt Phoebe Godfrey Amy Hanser Robert Lemon Nina Martin Caitlin Matthews Nathan McClintock Alfonso Morales Alan Nash Katherine Alexandra Newman Lenore Lauri Newman Alex Novie Matthew Shapiro Hannah Sobel Mark Vallianatos Ginette Wessel Edward Whittall Mackenzie Wood Planning ,2002 Urban Planning and the African-American Community June Manning Thomas,Marsha Ritzdorf,1997 How have urban planning policies contributed to racial injustices in American cities Does contemporary urban planning really address and attempt to solve the social and economic problems of African Americans in cities or does it just perpetuate ghetto conditions What have African Americans done to confront injustices in planning Historically race and city design are linked and Urban Planning and the African American Community aims to clarify the historical connections between the African American population and the urban planning profession and to suggest means by which cooperation and justice may be increased The book focuses on the areas of zoning and real estate planning and public policy African American initiatives and responses to urban planning and urban planning education Individual chapters examine the racial origins of zoning in American cities how Eurocentric family models have shaped planning policies applied to African American families the rise of equity planning and its effects the role of race and empowerment in the Model Cities experiment African American experiences with shaping the planning of such cities as Los Angeles Greensboro and Birmingham and provides a plan for diversifying planning education in order to advance the profession The editors also include a chapter of excerpts from important court cases and government reports that have shaped or reflected the racial aspects of urban planning This important new volume bridges the gap between urban planning and issues of race and will be an essential resource for academics and students in urban studies urban planning and race ethnic studies Planners' Ethics, Attitudes, and Roles Marta Escuin-Rubio,1994 Planning History and Methodology Michael Wegener,Kenneth Button,Peter Nijkamp,2007 Planning as deliberate preparation for future action is as old as human history Agricultural land allocation and cities were always planned as were military warfare and defence With the growing complexity of society in the 19th century however planning became a discipline and profession Since then not only has the perception of planning and its role in society undergone significant change but its instruments and methods have also evolved This collection of classic papers by leading individuals of their day reflects how thinking about planning has changed over time It also includes seminal papers on the methodology of planning to show how sophisticated techniques have been developed to meet the diverse demands of planning in a rapidly changing world Planning Metropolitan Landscapes Gunther Tress,2004

Environment & Planning A., 1997      Reconstructing Times Square Alexander J. Reichl, 1999 When the big ball drops on New Year's Eve thousands are there to witness that great glittering sight while millions more watch on national television Times Square may be the cultural hub of America the Crossroads of the World but its lights have not always shone as brightly as they do now Once a glamorous theater district Times Square and 42nd Street had degenerated into a neighborhood known for the winos and sex shops of Midnight Cowboy until New York's business and arts communities stepped in These advocates of urban revitalization exploited cultural and historic preservation arguments to transform a low income entertainment district into a Disney fied tourist mecca Where Ratso Rizzo once kicked cars and hookers plied their trade Mickey Mouse now greets visitors from atop a Disney superstore surrounded by rising office towers theaters and theme restaurants all thanks to huge tax subsidies and government support Alexander Reichl tells the fascinating story of how cultural politics and economic greed transformed the city's physical and social environment with an ongoing multibillion dollar redevelopment program changing the district from a symbol of urban decline to one of urban renaissance He explains the political significance of the historic preservation and arts related approach to urban revitalization showing how it was used to appeal to the upscale values of middle class New Yorkers often hostile to urban renewal He also examines the role of the Walt Disney Company in the project and demonstrates its power to redefine a premier public space In telling the story of Times Square Reichl reveals much about politics and power at the city level and their relationship to the development of urban space He frames his lively narrative with an illuminating account of how historic preservation initiatives at all government levels have displaced large scale federal urban renewal programs as the dominant approach to urban development and he shows the importance of political discourse and cultural politics in mobilizing public support for urban redevelopment Now that it has been reconfigured for the 21st century Times Square provides a rich and multifaceted case for exploring the latest trends in urban renewal Yet Reichl suggests much that has happened here is regrettable the ousting of low income citizens to serve commercial interests the loss of a culturally diverse entertainment district and the failure to address persistent class and race based segregation in a central urban area By getting to the heart of the Great White Way Reconstructing Times Square provides an important look at urban renewal and politics in a changing America      Philippine Journal of Development, 2004      Sustaining Architecture in the Anti-Machine Age Ian Abley, James Heartfield, 2001 The issue of sustainability is one of the guiding principles of contemporary architecture This book brings together contributions from architects journalists academics and consultants to discuss sustainability from a wide range of viewpoints with a focus on commercial development      Planning for Our Cultural Heritage Harry Coccossis, Peter Nijkamp, 1995 This work offers contributions to the evaluation and planning of the world's cultural heritage taking a strong methodological perspective from a policy angle and aiming to provide operational tools for evaluating cultural heritage in a policy relevant context. It draws upon real world cases.

Urban Water Engineering and Management Mohammad Karamouz, Ali Moridi, Sara Nazif, 2010-01-20. Based on recent research this book delineates a systems approach to urban water hydrology engineering planning and management. It covers a range of classic urban water management issues such as the modeling of urban water cycles, urban water supply and distribution systems, demand forecasting and wastewater and storm water collection and treatment. The text also includes a discussion of water governance and disaster management in urban areas. Against this background the authors discuss the importance of understanding the principles of simulation, optimization, multiple criterion decision making and conflict resolution for successful integrated urban water management.

Planning in Postmodern Era Ihnji Jon, 2018. This dissertation primarily aims to address the question of what should be the role of public policy planning in today's era of uncertainty compounded by climate change and natural hazards events in addition to ever diverging socio-economic inequalities. In the first chapter I proposed a set of anti-essentialist norms in planning based on which planning practitioners can gauge whose voices and interests should be prioritized in the midst of the conflicts amongst different social groups and movements. To do so I drew theoretical insights from third-wave feminist social theorists who have explored for a long time where to find a source of political solidarity that goes beyond the fixed categorization of gender. The second chapter on the other hand aimed to develop and promote more progressive use of the resilience concept in disaster planning by a thorough examination on the history and use of the concept across different disciplines. I have proposed that more emphasis on co-constitutive human-nature relationship as well as focusing on the collective aspects of resilience building can move us forward towards the progressive articulation of resilience theory going beyond the pessimistic critique on resilience as offloading of responsibilities. Finally the third chapter subsequently argued for the progressive potentials of resilience in disaster planning in practice comparing the cases of Seattle and Paris. Based on eleven in-depth key informant interviews with practitioners in the field I have demonstrated how resilience can become a source of empowerment and innovation for local governments to effectuate a more inclusive participatory risk governance model. In the end my dissertation was an effort to converge social problems and ecological problems in public policy by outlining planners' role in addressing social inequality on the one hand. Chapter 1 and yet at the same time proposing the possibilities of resilience or emancipatory catastrophism where our changing relationship with nature calls for the rise of solidarity and collective actions represented as increasing local initiatives and more inclusive knowledge practices. Chapter 3
