Mass Media In Perspective:

History and Future of Mass Media David Demers, 2007 This book argues that the no Marxists mostly have it wrong Although corporate media are structurally organized to maximize profits and produce content that generally helps elites achieve their goals this does not mean corporate media have less capacity to facilitate social change than entrepreneurial or other forms of media In fact historical evidence and comparative critical studies presented in this book show that mass media become more not less critical of dominant power groups institutions and value systems as they become more corporatized This proposition is part of a larger theoretical model that integrates the role of both social structure and human agency in explaining the persistence of modern capitalism The structural part of the theory also enables scholars to make predictions about the future of mass media including the ideas that the Internet is stealing some of the mediating power of traditional mass media and the market power of global media will grow in absolute terms but will shrink in relative terms because of increasing competition from new and traditional media
