Definitions of paradigms

Iterative development

Process is organized into periods (iterations or time boxes). On any given day team members may be gathering requirements, designing, coding, testing, and so on. An example of an iterative process is RUP.

Agile development

An iterative process which is also lightweight, highly collaborative, self-organizing, and quality focused. An example of an agile process is OpenUP, Scrum, and XP.

Lean development

Customer value-focused philosophy. A lean process strives to optimize value to the end customer, while minimizing waste which may be measured in terms of time, quality, and cost. Examples include Kanban and Scrumban.

Ad-Hoc development

On an ad-hoc software development project the team does not follow a defined process.

Traditional development

Staged process: the requirements are first identified, then the architecture/design is defined, then the coding occurs, then testing, then deployment. Often referred to as "water fall" or simply "serial" process.
