Migration, Urbanization, and Development Richard E. Bilborrow, 1998 Internal migration and urbanization are key dimensions of the process of socioeconomic development The unprecedented movement of peoples within the borders of their own countries is one of the greatest transformations witnessed in the 20th century Policy analysts especially those from developing countries where internal migration can be felt at first hand view migration as one of the most important factors affecting the course of development It is within this context that UNFPA convened the Symposium on Internal Migration and Urbanization in Developing Countries in January 1996 in preparation for the United Nations World Conference on Human Settlements in Istanbul in June 1996 The final results of the symposium are found in this book This volume provides a better understanding at global level of internal migration issues of concern to policy analysts Migration, Urbanisation and Development A. Migration, Urbanization, and Development: New Directions and Issues Richard E. Bilborrow, 2014-01-14 International migration and urbanization are key dimensions of the process of socioeconomic development The unprecedented movement of peoples within the borders of their own countries is undoubtedly one of the greatest transformations of humankind witnessed in the 20th century International migration while it has received perhaps less attention is an equally important process in many societies Policy analysts especially those from developing countries where the phenomenon of internal migration can be felt first hand view migration as among the most important factors affecting the course of development They consistently report that understanding the causes and effects of internal migration and urbanization is vital to putting in place policies to cope with the stresses and harness the potentials of migration in the most efficient way possible The world's population will surpass the 6 billion mark in 1998 In just a few years more another demographic landmark will be reached when over half of the world's population will be urban dwellers From that point on the world is forecast to become increasingly urban Latin America has already gone through this urban revolution and now has an urban population about three times larger than its rural population In the area of urbanization the greatest changes in the future will occur in Africa and Asia whose populations are still only about 35 percent urban Urbanization and Migration as Factors Affecting Global Economic Development Ushakov, Denis, 2014-11-30 International migration and urbanization are potential solutions for stabilizing the global economy and bolstering local and regional economies However if unregulated they can also put market stability at risk and cause new social problems in both developed and developing countries Urbanization and Migration as Factors Affecting Global Economic Development takes a close look at the impact of urbanization and international migration on the global economy Studying the dynamics of these two phenomena in countries across the world as well as the varying successes of regional regulations this publication is a valuable resource for academics interested in further research in urbanization migration and global economic efficiency as well as policymakers involved in regulating international migration and urbanization Migration, urbanization, economic development, 1966 Migration,
