Renaissance Of Legacy Systems Method Support For Software System Evolution:

The Renaissance of Legacy Systems Ian Warren, 2012-12-06 Today software professionals recognize that change in software systems is inevitable. There are many systems currently in operation, however, which were developed before the need for change was understood. Such systems are commonly referred to as legacy systems and were developed with relatively short lifetimes in mind. Software engineering is a relatively young discipline which is continually improving to provide better support for the development of software systems. What were once state-of-the-art techniques, tools, and processes are now dated and have resulted in systems which are not responsive to change. For historical reasons, dated development practices traded maintainability for other system attributes such as cost and performance. A significant number of legacy systems remain in operation because they are critical to the business processes which they support. The combination of extended lifetimes and poor maintainability means that legacy systems are expensive to change and in many cases they cannot accommodate emerging requirements. This is clearly an undesirable situation which until recently has been tackled by replacing the system or attempting to maintain it. Replacing a legacy system is dangerous since you face the risk of losing vital business knowledge which is embedded in many old systems. In many cases, system replacement is not cost-effective. Conversely, if you attempt to maintain a legacy system, there is often little return on the investment in maintenance effort and the system remains difficult and expensive to change.

The Renaissance of Legacy Systems Ian Warren, 2011-12-08 Many antiquated or legacy systems are still in operation today because they are critical to the organizations' continued operations or are prohibitively expensive to replace. This book guides practitioners in managing the process of legacy system evolution. The author introduces a comprehensive method for managing a software evolution project from its conception to the deployment of the resulting system. The book helps managers answer two critical decisions: What is the best way to evolve a particular legacy system and how can the legacy system be migrated to a selected target architecture?

Modernizing Legacy Systems Robert C. Seacord, Daniel Plakosh, Grace A. Lewis, 2003 Most organizations rely on complex enterprise information systems (EISs) to codify their business practices and collect, process, and analyze business data. These EISs are large, heterogeneous, distributed, constantly evolving, dynamic, long-lived, and mission-critical. In other words, they are a complicated system of systems. As features are added to an EIS, new technologies and components are selected and integrated. In many ways, these information systems are to an enterprise what a brain is to the higher species: a complex, poorly understood mass upon which the organism relies for its very existence. To optimize business value, these large, complex systems must be modernized, but where does one begin? This book uses an extensive real-world case study based on the modernization of a thirty-year-old retail system to show how modernizing legacy systems can deliver significant business value to any organization.

Model-Driven Software Migration: A Methodology Christian Wagner, 2014-03-10 Today, reliable software systems are the basis of any business or company. The continuous further development of those systems is the central component in software evolution It requires a huge amount of time man power as well as financial resources The challenges are size seniority and heterogeneity of those software systems Christian Wagner addresses software evolution the inherent problems and uncertainties in the process He presents a model driven method which leads to a synchronization between source code and design As a result the model layer will be the central part in further evolution and source code becomes a by product For the first time a model driven procedure for maintenance and migration of software systems is described The procedure is composed of a model driven reengineering and a model driven migration phase The application and effectiveness of the procedure are confirmed with a reference implementation applied to four exemplary systems

Gregory Wojtkowski, Stanislaw Wrycza, Jozse Zupancic, 2012-12-06 This book is a result of the ISD 99 Eight International Conference on Information Systems Development Methods and Tools Theory and Practice held August 11-13 1999 in Boise Idaho USA The purpose of this conference was to address the issues facing academia and industry when specifying developing managing and improving information systems ISD 99 consisted not only of the technical program represented in these Proceedings but also of plenary sessions on product support and content management systems for the Internet environment workshop on a new paradigm for successful acquisition of information systems and a panel discussion on current pedagogical issues in systems analysis and design The selection of papers for ISD 99 was carried out by the International Program Committee Papers presented during the conference and printed in this volume have been selected from submissions after formal double blind reviewing process and have been revised by their authors based on the recommendations of reviewers Papers were judged according to their originality relevance and presentation quality All papers were judged purely on their own merits independently of other submissions We would like to thank the authors of papers accepted for ISD 99 who all made gallant efforts to provide us with electronic copies of their manuscripts conforming to common guidelines We thank them for thoughtfully responding to reviewers comments and carefully preparing their final contributions We thank Daryl Jones provost of Boise State University and William Lathen dean College of Business and Economics for their support and encouragement Service Research Challenges and Solutions for the Future Internet M. Papazoglou, Klaus Pohl, Michael Parkin, Andreas Metzger, 2010-12-15 Service Foundations for the Internet of Services Today's Internet is standing at a crossroads The Internet has evolved from a source of information to a critical infrastructure which underpins our lives and economies The demand for more multimedia content more interconnected devices more users a richer user experience services available any time and anywhere increases the pressure on existing networks and service platforms The Internet needs a fundamental rearrangement to be ready to meet future needs One of the areas of research for the Future Internet is the Internet of Services a vision of the Internet where everything e.g information software platforms and infrastructures is available as a service Services available on the Internet of Services can be used by anyone if they are used according to the policies defined by the provider and they can be extended with new services by anyone Advantages of the Internet of Services include the possibility to build upon other people's efforts and the little investment needed upfront to develop an application The risk involved in pursuing new business ideas is diminished and might lead to more innovative ideas being tried out in practice It will lead to the appearance of new companies that are able to operate in niche areas providing services to other companies that will be able to focus on their core business
